

College honors 30th graduating class

By James Capo
PASADENA — Members of the 30th graduating class of Ambassador College received their degrees May 12 in the graduation ceremony in the lower gardens of the Pasadena campus. For the 35 who received their bachelor of arts degrees and the seven who received masters, it was a culmination of several hard and often trying years during which the campus was closed at Big Sandy, Tex., and night before graduation, with slides and a running commentary of Ambassador's recent history.

'Go forth to serve'

The graduation ceremony was opened by Deputy Chancellor Raymond F. McNair giving the invocation and address of welcome. Outgoing student body president David Myers then gave the discourse, in which he recalled for the seniors a motto inscribed in the wall of his old former school, "Enter to Learn, Go Forth to Serve."

"Fellow graduating seniors," Mr. Myers said, "we have completed the first half. . . We have been given the most valuable knowledge on the face of the earth." Relating how Jesus Christ told His disciples that the greatest among them would be servant of all, Mr. Myers encouraged those graduating to now do the second half of the motto, to go forth to serve, because "knowledge that is not put to use is of no value at all."

The Ambassador Chorale, under the direction of John D. Schroeder, performed "Let There Be Peace on Earth" and the "Hallelujah Chorus" before evangelist Herman Hoeh delivered the commencement address.

"We [Ambassador College] provide education for life," he said, explaining that we need to put to the test, and make known, that type of education. Mr. Hoeh explained that others will know that education through the character of the students, through the opportunities the students have to project that education wherever they go.

God-given opportunities

Relating how Ambassador students are involved in projects in Israel and Thailand, helping us to "better understand the mistakes and accomplishments of our ancestors" through archaeology and participating in "education for survival" of Cambodian refugees, Mr. Hoeh said, "It is unique that an institution as small as this should have the privilege [of participating in such projects] . . . This is not something that we have achieved ourselves. . ."

Mr. Hoeh said God has opened up these opportunities, it being His will that we should "convey the nature of education for life, fundamentally expressed in character. All other forms of learning are ultimately dependent upon that fundamental area."

It is the "overstructured and undereducated" who will discover that they were aiming only at this world, Mr. Hoeh said. The ultimate test of education is that we survive in the future.

Following the commencement address, the Watson Wise Incentive Award for scholarship and Christian service was awarded to Richard Micheal Bennett, and the conferring of degrees commenced.

In a separate ceremony May 13 in the Fine Art Recital Hall, 12 received a Diploma in Biblical Studies and the Certificate of the Ministry was awarded to three men.

receivership was imposed on the Church, threatening the college's existence. But it was also during a time when Chancellor Herbert W. Armstrong set about returning Ambassador to the original standards and ideals of God's college.

About half of those receiving bachelors degrees began their Ambassador careers at the former sister-campus in Big Sandy, coming to Pasadena when the college merged in 1977. The story of those students was told at the Graduation Ball, sponsored by the junior class the

Senate supports bill

The California State Senate passed the Petris Bill No. 1493 by a vote of 21 to 1 May 15. The following article was written before the Senate action. Church attorney Ralph K. Helge, reached by phone at the Los Angeles, Calif., International Airport upon his return from consultations with legislative officials at the State Capitol, commented, "By the Senate's actions in passing this bill removing all civil power from the attorney general, they have impliedly recognized the truth of our charge of political corruption."

The Legal Office of Rader, Helge and Gerson stated that the bill must also be passed by the California General Assembly and signed by the governor before it becomes state law.

Mr. Kotora pointed out that the actions of the attorney general are "flagrant violations" of the rights granted by the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

MINISTERS SPEAKS — Joe Kotora addresses rally in front of California State Capitol Building.

Sacramento Church pastor Joel Lillengren also addressed the assembly on the need to "awaken from apathy and . . . stand up for our religious freedom." In a later interview with The Worldwide News, Mr. Lillengren stated that a "climate of terrible indifference" regarding the defense of constitutional rights exists in Sacramento, as "people are not aware of the implications of the attorney general's actions."

Several members of the media covered the rally, including Sacramento television and radio outlets, radio station KFVB of Los Angeles, Calif., and various newspapers. An article appeared in the Sunday edition of the Sacramento Bee May 11 concerning the impact of the proposed bill, stating "The matter [concerning the powers of the California attorney general] . . . is

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — "Except as the [California] attorney general is empowered to act in the enforcement of the criminal laws of this state . . . [he] . . . shall have no powers with respect to religious corporations."

So reads proposed Senate Bill No. 1493 before the California legislature. On May 12, 150 Church members gathered with other representatives of religious bodies here at the State Capitol of California to show their support of the proposed bill.

While Church members distributed copies of the "State vs. Church" reprint, local elder Joe Kotora of Ministerial Services in Pasadena spoke before the assembly of politicians, interested citizens and members of the media concerning the attempted seizure of the Church's offices in Pasadena. According to a report filed by Ambassador College graduate Lon Lacey of Sacramento, Mr. Kotora explained to the group how the actions by the California attorney general are part of a continuing attempt to control church affairs.

SEP's tuition lowered to help more experience summer camp

By Michael Snyder
PASADENA — Tuition for the 1980 Summer Educational Program (SEP) at Orr, Minn., was cut from $300 to $175 for each of the two four-week sessions, according to Kevin Dean of the Work's Public Information Office. "If a family is sending two teenagers, the tuition will drop further to $150 per individual," he stated.

The move to lower tuition costs for the four-week sessions is to allow as many teenagers as possible to benefit from the newly revised program at Orr this year. The sessions will feature a "new dimension," reports Mr. Dean, since Mr. Herbert W. Armstrong has directed that emphasis be placed on "skill and character-building" at the Church-owned camp on the shores of Lake Pelican. The recreation program of SEP will be "integrated with an educational element focusing on God's truth."

Water skiing, canoeing and other traditional activities at Orr will be coupled with Bible baseball and Bible Bowl tournaments, as well as special films, lectures and presentations. "Mr. Armstrong has long been an advocate of the 'give' way of life," relates Mr. Dean. The lowered tuition costs should enable "as many teenagers as possible" to take advantage of the new program.

An important aspect of the 1980 sessions will be the active involvement of God's ministry. Mr. Dean stated that Mr. Armstrong is planning to speak at both sessions and evangelists Stanley R. Rader, Joe Tkach, Ellis LaRavia and Raymond McNair will visit the Orr facility to meet and talk with the SEP participants. Pastors from the U.S. field ministry were assigned to help with the administration and operation of the camp. Several Ambassador College students and faculty members will serve as counselors and activities directors. Mr. Dean noted that the program will "reflect the true values and high standards that Mr. Armstrong has been restoring in Ambassador College."

To help the campers develop an "attitude of striving for excellence," negotiations have been opened to bring well-known professional athletes to both sessions of the camp. Mr. Dean indicated that official announcements would be forthcoming. "We're working with members of pro football teams, waterskiing champions and other outstanding people to coordinate their schedules with the session dates at Orr."

In addition to the planned educational aspect, many of the traditional activities of past years will again be featured at the Minnesota facility. Water sports will play a big role, as well as basketball, volleyball and other team sports. "Sportsmanship, fair play and personal growth" will be emphasized, according to Mr. Dean. He also stated that awards for excellence in events will again be a part of the program, with teamwork and cooperation stressed.

Parents are urged to send in their teenagers' applications as soon as possible to take advantage of the new tuition rates. According to the National YOU Office, openings in both sessions are available. The sessions are scheduled as follows: June 17-July 13, first session; July 17-August 13, second session. Mr. Dean stated that the appropriate refunds will be made to those who have already paid the tuition costs.

Pastor reflects on wife's death

Arthur Suckling, pastor of three churches in England, lost his wife of 12 years to cancer Sept. 25, 1979. To help others cope and grow, Mr. Suckling reflected on his trials in a sermon. The following article is excerpted from that sermon for the benefit of our readers worldwide.

By Arthur Suckling

Not so many years ago a gentleman named Ronald Higgins wrote an article for The Observer about the world committing suicide. His book, The Seventh Enemy, was a follow-up to that article.

He went through the population explosion, starvation, the consumption of mineral resources, the degradation of the environment, nuclear potential and science and technology — six big areas.

He also wrote about the seventh area, which he named "the human factor." He said that if the world collapses it will be because of this seventh enemy — inner apathy and moral problems.

I think he was correct. When you read a book like that, it makes you realize how close his conclusions are to those the Church holds.

There are diseases and illnesses in the world and we have sickness, suffering and unhappiness in the Church of God. So what's the difference between the suffering in the world and the problems we have among our brethren in the Church? There is a vital difference!

My wife's death

I'd like to illustrate that difference by what the doctor said to me June 28, 1979. At 4:10 that afternoon he told me my wife was going to die. At that time he, as it were, delivered a death sentence, although I knew that God could intervene at any time. He said that my wife had malignant melanoma, and that she would have only four or five months to live, a deplorable situation.

But, when we as members of God's Church are confronted with unpleasant facts, we have something to draw on the rest of the world doesn't. The doctor said to me: "You're lucky. You have a faith to believe in." He knew that I was a minister of the Worldwide Church of God. He knew that I believed in God. Therefore he saw me as fortunate. He has seen people faced with like situations crack and crumble because they had no future to look forward to.

That is the difference between sufferings in the Church and sufferings in the world. We have a faith, a God and a future. I get a great deal of comfort from that truth. That understanding is priceless.

Why me?

That critical period was a time of revelation for me. It was a time when I naturally asked myself: "Why? Why did God permit this to happen to me? Here are two children, 7 and 10 years old, now without their mother. Here I am with a single parent family."

Ask yourself the question, "Why?" What is the sense behind this particular trial? My answer was, quite honestly, "I don't know!" So I started looking into the Bible for examples, for reasons, for justification if you like.

Out of that study came a vital principle. It is this: We may not understand why we are going through a particular trial, but we can have confidence that God is going to do the best thing for us to get us into His Kingdom.

As I continued studying, I looked at some biblical examples. If you look into the Bible you will begin to see that we are not any different from other human beings in that sense.

Notice Daniel 3:14-18, paraphrased: "And Nebuchadnezzar said to them, Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, that you do not serve my gods or worship the golden image that I have set up? Now if you are ready, when you hear the sound of the horn, pipe, lyre, harp, trigon, bagpipe and every kind of music, to fall down and worship the image that I have made, well and good. If you do not worship, you shall be immediately cast into the fiery furnace, and who is the God who shall deliver you out of my hands?"

That was a real trial. But these three young men were not going to compromise. So they said, "King Nebuchadnezzar, we have no need even to answer you in this matter." Why didn't they need to answer? They were facing certain death! The anticipation was not pleasant. They could have asked themselves, "Why us?" but they replied instead: "If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and He will deliver us out of your hand, O king. But, if not, be it known to you, O king, that we will not worship your gods nor serve the golden image that you have set up."

They could have looked at God and asked Him why He had allowed them to be put in that situation (surely He didn't want them to be so frightened). But instead they trusted God even in the face of imminent death.

Job's big trial

Take a look at the well-known example of a righteous man who had a big blind spot — his self-righteousness. In a very short period of time, Job went from serenity, happiness and righteousness to a man bereft of almost everything he had. All of his servants were slain; then all of his sheep were destroyed and he lost all of his camels. Then on top of this horrific economic disaster, he lost all of his children as well.

We talk about a stress factor in a person's life. How much stress do you think Job went through? I imagine his ordeal would go off the end of any stress scale. The only thing remaining was his wife, and from the way she reacted, she was no help at all.

But notice a key point. "In all this Job sinned not, nor charged God foolishly" (Job 1:22). So many people turn around and say: "God, you aren't fair. Why did you allow this to happen?" Just because times are rough and you are confronted with a wretched situation, that doesn't mean God isn't dealing with you or has abandoned you.

Notice Job 9:17: "For he breaketh me with a tempest, and multiplieth my wounds without cause." We know Job's blind spot. We know that Job felt indignant about this. He felt that he wasn't being dealt with fairly. Verse 20: "If I justify myself, mine own mouth shall condemn me: if I say, I am perfect, it shall also prove me perverse." Job found himself in a dilemma. Job's conclusion was that God destroys the perfect and the wicked. This is not an erroneous conclusion. God does allow both the righteous and the unrighteous to die.

Notice now Job 13:15: "Though he slay me, will I trust in him: but I will maintain mine own ways before him." Job did have the Achilles' heel problem here. He was going to maintain his own righteousness. He didn't feel he was being dealt with fairly and as a consequence he was going to stick to his guns unto death.

But Job's attitude changed later. "I know that thou canst do every thing, and that no thought can be withholden from thee" (Job 42:2). Job knew that God could monitor all his thoughts. So many times we forget this. Our very thought patterns must be brought into line with God's thoughts.

Job continued: "Who is he that hideth counsel without knowledge? therefore have I uttered that I understood not [we all have that problem from time to time]; things too wonderful for me, which I knew not. Hear, I beseech thee, and I will speak; I will demand of thee, and declare thou unto me. I have heard of thee by the hearing of the ear; but now mine eye seeth thee. Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes" (verses 3-6).

Job came to the place where he realized what real repentance was. He evaluated himself in the light of God's Word and realized that he was nothing but a burned-out hunk of junk.

Suffering develops character

As we look at these examples of Job and of Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego we can see the end justifies the means. God was right in

Just one more thing

By Dexter H. Faulkner

"Son, could you lend me 50 bucks?"

This may not be an unusual request in these days of high inflation. After all, many teenagers are "in the money."

It's comparatively new, this teenage affluence. My wife and I can remember the day when most young people had little money of their own. But today it is not unusual for the high school or secondary school contingent to have cars, buy their own clothes and even travel to Europe with teenage groups.

As to the effect of this comparative wealth on our young people, there seems to be mixed emotions. Some people feel teenagers have too much money today, that they don't know how to handle it and are often wasteful.

As a concerned parent I ask myself, what can be done about it? Should my teenagers be taught the value of money in the schools? Or is this my responsibility?

After a little research, I found that both schools and some parents are having a word with young people on the subject.

Some schools are doing so with modernized consumer-education courses. Some of them even instruct teenagers in how to buy a car, how to finance it and how to operate it economically.

Teenagers are interested in clothes. They want to look sharp and yet not spend all their money on them. Special consumer-buying courses include tips on this, too.

How much should be spent on recreation, on sports, etc.? Pupils are asked to add up their spending in this area and decide what part of their incomes should be devoted to leisure-time activities as compared with other needs. If your children's school has such a program, that's good, but it is not enough. There are also spiritual principles involved in the handling of money that Christian parents need to teach their young sons and daughters. To be sure your young people are getting a good foundation, both economically and spiritually, why not start your own home education program in the proper use of money?

Start early and in a businesslike way. You will have to do your homework. Proverbs is especially full of helpful instructional material for sound money management. Following are a few points that I have found helpful in teaching my children money management.

• First determine your child's monetary needs. Discuss them with the youngster, making sure he understands how and why you arrived at the specific sum you decide is proper. Be fair, consider all his needs and allot enough to adequately cover them.

• Promise this amount on a regular basis and keep that promise. Rules should not be ironclad, but the child should understand that he has to live within the given allowance. This is an ideal time to teach the principle of tithing. First tithe, putting God first and the giving principle. The second tithe, looking forward to the Holy Days, and most of all, the meaning of the Feast of Tabernacles when God commands us to enjoy what we have saved. Plus the explanation of the third-tithe blessing.

• It is not wise to give him or her a bonus for good behavior or good grades in school or to pay extra for regular household chores. These should be performed as a part of family responsibility.

• Encourage your children to keep track of their expenditures and income — a good habit to form early.

• The child should be allowed to make his or her own spending decisions. This is where young people learn responsibility. Of course, they will make mistakes, but don't we all? Better to learn these lessons with a limited amount of money under parental supervision. It does not mean that you never offer advice or make observations on how the money was spent, but only that you do not make those decisions for him or her.

• Once the amount of the allowance is established the child should not be given more money just because he or she has spent all he or she had.

• If the child asks for a raise, give it thoughtful consideration — discuss it! This is an ideal time to communicate!

• As children grow older take time to have family instruction on how to make a workable budget, how to write a check, open a bank account, read a contract before you sign it, fill out income tax forms, apply for credit or a bank loan. All these items are important parental responsibilities. Don't assume your youngsters are taught all this information in their schools. If wrongly taught or never understood, it could mean economic disaster for them in adult life.

Learning to budget, save, plan ahead and spend wisely all contribute to the child's ability to learn how to make good decisions.

A final word, brethren. As Christian parents, we need to manage our own finances carefully. Children are apt to pick up their parents' habits, good or bad.

In the next issue I hope to explain why I had to ask my son to lend me 50 bucks.

Widow a link for brethren worldwide

By Hugh Mauck

PASADENA — Mary Floy Mauck, 88, died shortly after noon April 21.

Mrs. Mauck had been a widow 49 years and outlived two of her three children, seven of her eight brothers and sisters and many of her nieces and nephews. Yet she had a spiritual family that extended around the world, God fulfilling for her His promise to provide "an hundredfold" brethren, sisters and children in this life, and in the world to come eternal life (Mark 10:30).

Mrs. Mauck was baptized in early 1955, shortly after God opened the doors for His Church to begin preaching the Gospel in Europe. During those days Richard David Armstrong was assigned to work in England. Mrs. Mauck, single and alone, began corresponding with him to keep him informed of the Church's growth in America.

He in turn wrote to her about the news in England and Europe, which she passed on to other members through letters, cards and phone conversations.

In those early years the Work had no formal means (such as the WN today) of communicating news of the Work to the ministry and members around the world.

Word soon got around that Mrs. Mauck was well-informed and a good letter writer, with the ability to make her correspondence interesting. She had a love for writing, a keen interest in what others wrote her and, perhaps more important, the time to devote herself fully to providing links between the Work's offices worldwide.

As word continued to spread, more and more ministers, along with many members, began to request that she write to them. And so, having obtained Herbert W. Armstrong's approval, Mrs. Mauck began a unique spiritual service, sustaining the scattered ministry and members with information and encouragement.

For almost a quarter of a century she pounded out letters on her aging portable typewriter, till her eyes dimmed and her fingers got too stiff to control. For about the past three years she wrote by hand. And although she had to curtail much of her correspondence, she continued writing until the day she died.

After the birth of The Worldwide News, ministerial bulletins and other forms of official Church communication, the need for Mrs. Mauck to correspond was not as great. But by that time, she had made hundreds of friends around the world, who kept in touch with other friends through her.

Hundreds of ministers and Ambassador College students and faculty members would visit her, intending to cheer up a lonely widow. Instead, to their amazement, they found themselves being cheered up and entertained by Mrs. Mauck's quick wit and inspired by her biblical knowledge.

Mrs. Mauck's memory remained sharp until just hours before she died. She told me several months ago that she felt she had lived long enough for this life. She prayed that when God took her, He would not require her to suffer long or become an invalid. God honored her prayer and she suffered severe pain no more than a few days and died quietly in her sleep. Her tombstone reads, "Physical Mother of Three, Spiritual Mother to Thousands."

WITH STANLEY R. RADER

This issue's "Forum" is excerpted from comments made by Stanley R. Rader, the Work's treasurer and general counsel to Herbert W. Armstrong, in Pasadena May 6. Mr. Rader's address covers various aspects of the present state of the Church.

I'm very happy to be here today. It's been a long time since I've been in Pasadena for any length of time. As you know I've been away almost 10 weeks. And I guess much has happened here and there are probably many questions that you have to ask. I just want to make a few announcements to you and go right to your question-and-answer session.

This is a new ad that will be appearing hopefully around the country (see ad, page 6). '83 Million Americans versus California's Attorney General. Who do you think is right? Now, in the past, we've had to speak for ourselves. Everything that we have said by way of public utterance in advertisements of this type, we had said. But this time we have taken excerpts from the transcript proceedings of a press conference March 7, 1980, in Washington, D.C., at the United Methodist Building. This was the time when these major religious organizations and churches announced that they were filing on our behalf amicus briefs with the Supreme Court to back up our writ of certiorari.

We have the comments of Dean Kelley who represents the National Council of Churches. We have Leo Pfeffer who is one of the leading experts in the entire field of constitutional law as it relates to the First Amendment and the freedom of religion in particular and then Mr. Tribe, Professor [Laurence] Tribe of Harvard Law School, our own counselor, prepared the brief. And I think you'll find it a compelling statement. We hope to place this immediately in the Los Angeles [Calif.] Times, the [Pasadena] Star-News, Washington Post and New York Times. And Mr. Armstrong has told me to get it placed in Time magazine around the world. So I have to go to work on that. And we'll step up our efforts in this area. It's a good advertisement, for many reasons. It's quite detailed, and I think it will impress those people who read it. I don't think they could miss it. It's a very powerful headline.

I also have saved this announcement for my being able to tell you in person. Remember back in April of 1979 some of you watched Mike Wallace on 60 Minutes, and he had attacked Mr. Rader as being investigated by the Criminal Tax Division of the Internal Revenue Service. Well, we knew for some time that the investigation had been terminated, with the Internal Revenue Service withdrawing, and I wanted to be able to tell you that today personally. And it's official. The letter has been received. What we all knew was true, anyway, has simply been now something that the Internal Revenue Service also realizes, that I, and I don't think any other member of the Church, to my knowledge, have ever been guilty of any infraction of the Internal Revenue Code, no less criminality.

But we know that there have been false informers for years. And they just simply gave the Internal Revenue Service, as they did before to the Customs Service, false information about us. And they had to spend a great deal of time running down the facts.

But I had always known the Internal Revenue Service would deal with people in accordance with the ground rules. That is with accordance to the law. I've dealt with them off and on for 30 years myself representing other clients. And they did not in any way change my opinion as a result of this 15-month investigation. They were not like the people from the attorney general's office who will lie when they think it's necessary. They'll invent when necessary, in their opinion, and they will malign and slander.

And it was not the Internal Revenue Service, by the way, that announced they were conducting an investigation. That's against the rules also. But it was the Honorable Judge [Steven] Weisman and people like that who breached the confidence of

"... when I spoke in China the first time, I pointed out that there is no issue in this country the way it's presently constituted that is not settled ultimately in the courts. So you've got an awful lot of power out there in the courts. And if that power is even a little bit corrupted, you've got a very evil thing."

the Internal Revenue Service and it got to Mike Wallace.

But again you will probably notice no effort on behalf of 60 Minutes to undo the damage that they did by their gratuitous statement. All of you might write and ask them to give us a postscript. But it would surprise me if they did. I will personally send a letter to that effect just for the record.

But it's good in a way that it happened because now we have another agency of the government that knows the difference between false witness and something that is not false. And they also know that we cooperated fully with them. They abided by the rules, so we not only abided by the rules, but we waived all our constitutional rights. As a matter of fact I gave them information they would never otherwise be able to get. So they all know that, and eventually maybe the word will filter out to other agencies that these people like [Earl] Timmons and the like continue to write. They just simply peddle false information. And it's made me very mindful as I read the Bible how often the words false witness pop up. You go through the gospels, as you go through the book of Acts, go through the Bible, Old Testament as well, you'll see "false witness, false witness, false witness" coming up over and over again.

It takes on new meaning for me every time I read it, and we now know more about what persecution means, and how persecution and false witness goes together. But we do have God on our side and He will protect us. I thought I'd tell you that personally so that we know at least one problem is now gone by the wayside.

Mr. [Ralph] Helge, while I was away, I understand gave a sermon or a sermonette in Church that brought you up to date on the lawsuit [see article, page 4]. Those are very good comments. He covers the whole spectrum of the lawsuit, exactly where we stand now and what other things we have to be mindful of. I cannot stress too much, these will be the words that I think we will not only remember, but I think that people all over the world will ultimately remember and come to understand.

The most confident, the most optimistic words in the whole Bible, I think — that's my own opinion — are found in Mark 13:31 when Christ said, "Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away." I can't find any other statement anywhere in the Bible that remotely compares to that in terms of quiet confidence, supreme confidence.

And I feel that this battle between the State of California on one hand trying to destroy this Church, and the Church and its brethren worldwide defending, I think, without a doubt, it will go down in the annals of constitutional law in such story form, by the time it's through, that as long as there are books dealing with things in this world, people will not forget it. It will be something like the Peter Zenger trial, which had to do with freedom of the press in the early days of our revolution. Besides the fact that people will understand that God is a living God, and that Christ is sitting with Him, I think all of those things will be more meaningful for people in the future because they will see the way we come out of this struggle despite the fact that we are dealing with people who will lie and invent. When our own government officials will lie and invent where they think it necessary, and will slander and defame where it isn't even necessary, we are living in a much different age than most of the people ident for political corruption only scratches the surface when you get down to what Mr. Helge is referring to in his comments. You should read them very carefully. And I'm still hoping that there will be reporters, a hungry one who will get in there and dig. Woodward and Bernstein were very, very hungry.

All you have to do is put Pacht together with Chodos, together with Tapper, and just take it forward. You see all the rules have been violated. The conspiracy and the collusion are there. And then all you have to do is take Pacht, [Julius] Title, and [Thomas] Johnson and [Robert] Weil and put them together. They're all protecting one another, desperately covering one another.

But if someone starts with that story, or they could start with Weisman. How does an ex-justice who never made more than 'y' number of dollars in his whole life, how does he come to get involved in a situation where, if everything worked out as Judge Pacht wanted it to when he said, "Unless those people cave in amaze me in so many different ways. How many of you saw a teleplay this week starring Henry Fonda based up on the Gideon trial? Did anybody see that? About the man who was sentenced to prison and did not have the benefit of counsel even though he asked for it. Mr. Armstrong watched it very carefully. And he said, "It's amazing, isn't it Stan, how political the whole process is of the Supreme Court?" You see, no one cared about Gideon. No one cared that this man had been incarcerated without a fair trial. When they were weighing the pros and cons they were worried about the political factors. How much money is this going to cost the state? How much money is it going to cost other states? How many people are in prison in Florida already who were there improperly? Five thousand. That's terrible. You let 5,000 people get out who don't belong there, or who arguably don't because their rights have been invaded, that's going to make the whole system look bad. So Gideon's fate was determined not so much by the merits of the case as it might affect Gideon. But they were affected by the politics.

That's why, when I spoke in China the first time, I pointed out that there is no issue in this country the way it's presently constituted that is not settled ultimately in the courts. So you've got an awful lot of power out there in the courts. And if that power is even a little bit corrupted, you've got a very evil thing.

But Mr. Armstrong has always taught us that there is no justice in this world. And you know what he says the Bible tells us about judges. So with that as a reminder, basically, to read Mr. Helge's comments carefully. They're very compelling. He has been on the firing line here the last couple of months while I was away. And what he said is very cogent. It is very convincing. It is very conclusive. I'm hoping, we're going to circulate it widely and maybe a reporter somewhere will get to work. Because it could be a Pulitzer Prize as I've said from the outset for the reporter willing to do the job. And we'll help them. And we'll give him all the facts he needs. We cooperated with anybody who had a right to have the information and was not trying to destroy this Church in the process.

in this country are yet willing to recognize."

As Mr. Armstrong said, those helicopters that failed in Iran, failed because of an act of God. And no one here yet in this country, except maybe the few of us who have been called, no one wants to recognize that we have in this world defied God for too long.

I'm still hopeful that just as there were a Bernstein and Woodward who came to the surface and brought to the light political and governmental corruption at the time of the Watergate affair, we will find some reporter with some guts to dig, and he will uncover, I think in the final analysis, a bigger story. Because there was only one Nixon. But this pattern is rife. This pattern is from state to state, from municipality to municipality. Getting rid of one present there," he would have earned $400 thousand in the first year, an associate in his office would have earned the same amount of money, and that associate's daughter would have earned almost that much money. It's a beautiful story, isn't it. Those are your real dollar numbers, dollar amounts. Those are the ones that would turn on the public.

But nobody wants to write it yet. Because the minute you do, you start to undermine the confidence of the people in the judiciary. And I can show you case after case after case where the people in power, the establishment, have stated directly and indirectly it is better to let injustice go uncorrected than to expose the evil. Because the judiciary is that bastion, you might say. It has not yet been exposed for what it is.

Canadian Work surges ahead

By Leslie L. McCullough
VANCOUVER, B.C. — The Work in Canada is enjoying record-breaking increases, with no indication that the trend has reached its peak. Terms such as "booming, soaring, sky-rocketing" or "fantastic, incredible and unbelievable" are often misused and construed as exaggerations. Unfortunately, no other way describes what is happening to God's Work in Canada in 1980.

A surge in growth

Under the vigorous leadership of Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong, God is continuing to bless the Canadian Work, and the surge in growth is generating optimism for the future.

Canadian donation mail for the January-March period is up 8.6 percent over 1979, regular mail is up 48 percent and advertisement response is up a whopping 4,495 percent. How do you measure or describe a 4,000-percent increase without using the adjectives listed above?

In the last three months The Plain Truth mailing list doubled from last year, each issue carrying timely, hard-hitting articles by Mr. Armstrong. Out of 124,854 advertisement responses received, 95,000 are for The Plain Truth.

'PT' coverage good

The PT newsstand program, which carries Mr. Armstrong's personal and lead articles as well as other important material, is approaching a monthly distribution mark of 400,000 issues. We hope to reach the half-million-issue-monthly figure before the year is out with several new outlets. We also hope to boost the regular Plain Truth subscription list to 300,000 copies. Since Canada has about seven million households, this will give us good coverage using only the print medium.

But the printed page is only part of God's Work in Canada. The nationwide CKO radio network is providing an increasingly effective means of preaching Christ's Gospel through Mr. Armstrong. For the first time in months, the Vancouver Office is receiving many letters from enthusiastic listeners to The World Tomorrow broadcast. Contracts for the television broadcast featuring Mr. Armstrong are being prepared, which will provide 12 outlets for the next 52 weeks.

The Spring Holy Days are another indication of the state of God's Work in Canada. Nationwide attendance was up 7 percent over 1979, with a 24-25 percent increase in Holy Day offerings. Canadian pastors report an increasing number of visit requests from new people, and the Church brethren here are expressing a fresh wave of enthusiasm for the Work. People are concerned about the climactic headlines in their daily papers, and the churches are waxing strong behind Mr. Armstrong.

Perhaps these trends can all be summed up in a paraphrase of the Merrill Lynch stockbrokers advertisement, "Canadians are bullish on the Worldwide Church of God."

WANT YOUR PHOTOS RETURNED?

If you want your photos from "Local Church News," "Announcements," the baby coupon or feature articles returned, please include a self-addressed stamped envelope with the pictures. Write your name and address on the back of each photo with a felt-tip pen or use a gummed label, as the pressure from writing with a pen or pencil frequently damages the image in the reverse side. We also recommend including a piece of cardboard roughly equal in size to the inside dimensions of the return envelope for protection of your photos in the mail. These steps will greatly reduce expenses and time on our part and insure that your photos are returned undamaged. We thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Members hear attorney rebut retraction by local TV station

The following article is taken from a sermon given in the Auditorium P.M. church in Pasadena April 12 by Ralph Helge, attorney for the Church.

What I wanted to speak to you about today was something that just occurred here, in fact, is occurring. We had the opportunity to go on TV to rebut some of the false charges that have been laid against us, against the Church and some of its leaders. We went on TV with a documentary. As soon as that documentary was shown, they immediately received a few letters. Only a few, but the few that came worked a great change. They carried great power and great persuasion. There was a letter from Judge [Jerry] Pacht. There was a letter from Lawrence Tapper as the deputy attorney general of California. There was a letter from [Hillel] Chodos, a letter from his brother, a letter from Judge [Steven] Weisman. That's all it took to all of a sudden have this station change its colors. I don't know if they're going to give me equal time on the TV station, but with the help of God's power we're having a little equal time right here.

So I'm just going to touch upon some items said by the TV station in their retraction. In this case the television show is taking about four pages of doubled typed script, and maybe five to six minutes each night to go ahead and repeat their apologies. I'm going to touch upon some of the things they're saying and some of the facts they're leaving out.

They say, "The action sought the appointment of a receiver for temporary protection of Church assets." They don't tell the public that the suit was intended to change the structure of the Church from hierarchical to congregational. They don't say that they [the State] also sued to replace the board of directors that is comprised of all the Church leaders. They didn't say that the case itself is attempting to confirm that the state owns all the Church assets in California.

They said, "The hearing in Judge Pacht's chambers, which resulted in the judge's appointment of a temporary receiver, was proper." But, again, they didn't say anything about the hearing that occurred before the lawsuit was filed. They didn't talk about the fact that they didn't file the lawsuit till Judge Pacht said, "I will sign your order," until he gave them a guarantee.

What happened to all the rules they've got on judge's bias, that say if the court gives advice ahead of time, or if the court is biased, he shouldn't sit in any further hearings? But he did come back for the hearing that they try to refer to as being "proper" here. Do you think it's proper to go before a judge without the other side being there, and without the lawsuit even being filed?

Then they say, "Although prior notice of the hearing is usually required . . ." There are cases that say if you're going to infringe upon somebody's constitutional rights, it is required; not sometimes or "usually." And if you're going to take over an entire church and run it, own it, I will say that's kind of the epitome of a First Amendment right.

Then, they go on to say that, "of course, this is allowed in emergency situations." This "no-notice" hearing where they sneak in clandestinely like some undercover covert CIA agents. They say it is "allowed in emergency situations."

And when they talked about document shredding, why didn't the TV station also say that the court found no evidence of document shredding? Why didn't the station talk about one of the biggest law firms in the nation, perhaps in the world, and the fact that they had total control of our document center? I personally sat next to Judge Weisman when an agent from the accountants for the receiver came in, and he said, "Yes, they do have all of the accounting safeguards."

They didn't talk about the fact that [Earl] Timmons signed an affirmation in which he said, Well, I heard some things—they didn't call him to the stand. They didn't put in here that this emergency situation was in fact a sham and a farce.

They didn't talk about Big Sandy [Tex.]. They didn't say that what they said in the papers—in two days Big Sandy's going to be sold, that that was a lie, because the sale wasn't going through for 20 or 30 days more. They didn't say they could have filed a piece of paper called a Lis pendens in Big Sandy and stymied the sale. They said, it was an emergency; we had to take over the entire Church.

And they didn't say that when they got to court they admitted that they had no evidence of Big Sandy being worth $30 million, that it was a damnable lie they put in the papers! That's what the court says, "That's the cruncher." They didn't say not only was it not worth $30 million, but the receiver tried to sell it for the same purchase price the Church was trying to sell it for, to show the falsity, the allegation there.

When they talked about an emergency situation, they didn't say that we put men on the stand who traced the sale of every parcel of property that we sold and showed appraisals for it and how the money went from the buyer into an escrow and into the Church account, so that all this "emergency situation" was just so much falderol.

Then they go on to say, ". . . and it's really not true as the Church suggested . . ." We didn't suggest anything, we said it! ". . . that Judge Pacht did not pay sufficient attention to crucial documents." Let's take Judge Pacht's own words, shall we? "I read the Declarations pretty carefully. I have barely skimmed through some of the others. And the financial matters," and isn't this the key? "And the financial matters I glanced at." He's got some omissions, but that's basically it. "I glanced at." "I haven't digested those in any form." That's his words. They couldn't find any evidence.

They said, "It's noteworthy that the California Commission on Judicial Performance, who judges judges, determined unequivocally that Judge Pacht conducted the hearing properly." Again, they didn't talk about the clandestine hearing. They didn't talk about the collaboration hearing. Nor did they say that the Judicial Commission did not in any way contact us to say, do you have any more facts? No! Not one word before they came out with their decision!

They didn't tell them, it's all conducted in secrecy . . . The Judicial Commission, with especially Chodos, were up criticizing the Supreme Court of California because the Supreme Court didn't make its stinking processes in public. The very thing that these hypocrites condemned they're guilty of! And they didn't tell us that the Judicial Commission is comprised of certain men, and two of those men are Chodos and Pacht, the very men accused! That was the group that sat and judged the conduct of Pacht and Chodos!

Now it says, "We know of no evidence of any person suppressing the transcript." What they don't say is that we were referred to Allan Browne, who made many phone calls when the suit began, saying, "Is there a transcript?" And he was told, "No, no, no!" They didn't tell you that! They say, "We know of no evidence . . ." Do you know why they don't know of any evidence? They put blinders on, that's why. They didn't call the other attorneys either, who heard certain things about suppressions.

Why didn't they say that when the Church called upon Judge Pacht and said, "Will you give a deposition?" he said: "No! I refuse to. I have nothing to add." And the court didn't make him, of course. And when we took the deposition of the court reporter, she refused to answer certain questions about what transpired between her and the judge.

They say that, "the appointment of a receiver has been the subject of several appeals." That is an absolute, bald-faced, unequivocal lie. We have never had an appeal in which that factor was considered. We have one appeal pending now that is going to be heard on this point—hasn't been heard yet.

They say, "The courts have apparently decided that there is indeed evidence to support the actions taken on behalf of the state." Tell you, that is false! When you take a writ up you say, Court, will you consider this? And the court said, We refused to consider the evidence.

They said in the conclusion, in this point, "We have no reason to believe that the attorney general . . . improperly came into possession of Church documents." Perhaps he didn't talk to some of the dissidents who I talked to who admitted that people were receiving Church documents from certain employees. They apparently didn't talk about all the documents that the attorney general has—over 800. I didn't give him those documents as secretary! I know others around here who have authority over documents didn't give them to them. How did they get them? Don't tell me they got them lawfully! How did they get those documents that were attached to their complaint? Confidential internal documents. Not that they were wrongful records that were wrongfully kept— they were proper records! But they were our internal confidential records. We didn't give them those! How did they get those? Don't tell me there was no suggestion that they didn't have evidence that the property came into their possession improperly.

There's rules about receiving stolen property. It's a crime if you do it knowingly. They will arrest you and prosecute you. But the AG can receive stolen documents! Who prosecutes the man who's supposed to prosecute? No one! They have placed themselves above the law.

They didn't talk about the perjury committed at the court against us. When we took it down to the appropriate authorities they said: Oh no, we're not going to prosecute the government's witnesses. We're going to investigate the Church instead. Perhaps that's why they could find no improprieties—they didn't look too hard.

They said, "There is no evidence to know . . ." They said, "There's no reason to believe . . ." But why didn't they say that when I served them over a hundred interrogatories to the government? The court said, "No," the government doesn't have to answer. The government's not going to have to condemn itself. They can keep their wrongdoing totally secret. Why don't the TV stations say that?

Why don't the TV stations say that they have said that Mr. Armstrong, Mr. Rader, myself and the other defendants in that action cannot take the attorney general in on deposition; we cannot find out about the wrongs they've done; we cannot call Mr. Chodos in; we cannot call Mr. Pacht in; that the court has barred us from getting to those truths! So if they say they have no evidence, why don't they bring out the reason why! We've got evidence! If they want more, we can get it, but we're barred from getting it.

The State is always attempting to gain more power. We as individuals, our protection against the state, against the government, lies in what? It lies in the Constitution. The Constitution says, Government, you can't do this to these people. Government, you have no right to do that.

The people who get into government, who get into power, they're always trying to circumvent the Constitution that restricts their authority. The State wants to circumvent, to irradiate those rights so they can have more power. That's why you get this constant battle of cases coming out. Who protects us then? It's the judges. But in this case what do we have? We have a cadre of judges who are not going to do anything, because of the brotherhood of judges. They're going to do everything, on the other hand, to protect one of their brothers. Now, I'm not saying they're no good men. There are some good judges down there—there are! There are some good judges, but they are caught up into the system. They can't rebel and cast and go contrary to the entire system.

So who protects us from the judges? The Judicial Commission, right? But, as we learned, the Judicial Commission is dominated and controlled by some of the very men who are being accused! And some attorneys were supposed to have investigated this matter for the TV station. But what about this combination of judges in the state—how much influence do you think that they exert, maybe not even intentionally, over lawyers? You come to your own conclusions.

So virtually all the forces that influence these TV stations are our opponents. I say it's awesome and frightening, but confirming. To me it confirms the Bible, that this is Satan's world, that it's Satan's government, it's his system, and that in the long run and over the long haul, not counting a few exceptions, there is no justice.

You know, history shows it's a never-ending circle with each generation. And man keeps thinking that if we can just change the structure of our government some way, if we can just do that we're going to have happiness, we're going to have peace.

They think it's in the form of government rather than—what? People who are filled with God's Holy Spirit! That's what they don't see, but that's what God tells us, and that's what this case is confirming in part. Man keeps thinking if you change the structure you're going to get happiness. That's false. The Bible tells us—and I tell you from this case, I now am ready to confirm and believe it with all my heart and my soul. Mr. Armstrong was right! It confirms that no government of man has or is ever going to work successfully for the benefit of the people that it governs.

Now, in this insight, what is our physical and legal hope? Our physical and our legal hope is that the State Supreme Court, or the U.S. Supreme, hopefully far enough away from the corrupt influence of this power, will hear the case. Will hear it, and will reverse it, and it will be over. That's one thing we should pray about. In the same time, we've got to make sure we learn the lesson God wants us to learn from this trial. Let us learn the lesson, as we pray for these things to happen, that there is no real justice in this world; there is no real happiness in this world, there is no real happiness, and there's not going to be!

My little girl last night was crying a little because we were talking about the persecution, the fleeing, that's going to come. And she said, "Well, how can it be a happy time when there we are in a place of safety, and people around us are being killed?" And I had to explain, that's happening today! It happens every day of your life! It happens every day of my life!

Horrors are going on all over this world, but we don't quite appreciate them unless we can read that Bible and understand it. We sit here with all the things that we have, and we forget about others. But we've got to believe what's preached in this Church. We've got to believe the Bible, to realize that there is no real peace, there is no real happiness in this world for the world itself, and no real justice overall, until the Kingdom of God comes and takes over this earth, and is a government ruled by Spirit beings. Then, and only then, are we going to achieve that. So we've got to not only pray for it, but we've got to live for that as well.

We've also got to have another thing in mind—that is God's will. We always say in our prayers, God's will be done. Right? Well, what is God's will in this? Is it God's will that this is the commencement of the beginning of the end? I'm not saying it is, I'm only asking the question, that I—believe me—do not purport to know. But in Acts it does talk about the Church having been scattered at that time. Right? If you read in Hebrews 11 it tells you about people who were persecuted and scattered and fleeing. They were being persecuted constantly and continuously. It says, ". . . of whom the world was not even worthy . . ."

When you read about that long list of persecution, you come to the point that it brings tears to your eyes. The world wasn't worthy of the people when we're persecuted in one city to go to another. Is that time here now? When I see what is happening in the courts and elsewhere, I just want to admonish you. I want to warn you—I want to plead with you. Don't lose faith in your leaders! Don't lose faith in your Church because of this case! And don't lose faith in God if arrests and indictments come forth. Again, I'm not saying they are, but I'm saying if they do. You know, manacles, as you read back in the Bible, were good enough for Paul. We've got to make sure that we're not going to be too good for the manacles in case our time has come.

But I'll tell you there is a corrupt, political and judicial power that must crush us—it has too! It's gotten so involved in this matter, I'm telling you it's going to take a miracle from God to have it end peacefully.

If you're watching the newspapers, and you're watching TV, world events are deteriorating, and they're deteriorating rapidly. This case is only one small aspect of that whole. There's nothing more that I can say than what's been preached to you by Mr. Herbert Armstrong, and by all his ministers, for years and years. There's nothing more that I can add. Luke 21:36, Hebrews 10:25. I can't add to those things.

Watch and pray, and do not forsake the assembling of yourselves together

" . . . You know, history shows it's a never-ending circle with each generation. And man keeps thinking that if we can just change the structure of our government some way, if we can just do that we're going to have happiness, we're going to have peace . . ."

83 Million Americans versus California's Attorney General - Who do you think is right?

A remarkable press conference was held March 7, 1980, in Washington, D.C. Its purpose was to draw attention to a brief filed in the U.S. Supreme Court. That Friends of the Court (amici curiae) brief was sponsored by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States, the Synagogue Council of America, the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs, the National Association of Evangelicals, the Lutheran Church in America, The Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches, The Board of Church and Society of the United Methodist Church and the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of the United States of America.

The aggregate constituency represented by these religious associations is more than 80 million Americans. That is more people than have ever before been represented by any brief presented to the Supreme Court of the United States by anyone other than the attorney general of the United States, who speaks for all Americans.

What was their cause? What single unifying factor brought these 83 million Americans to this point?

Read on. This advertisement has been prepared and paid for by the Worldwide Church of God and some of its supporters. But except for this opening and the noted closing at the end of this advertisement, the words here are not the Church's words. They are the words of the representatives of those 83 million Americans. And what they are fighting is an astonishing and unconscionable effort by the attorney general of the state of California to destroy the Worldwide Church of God simply because it preaches the Gospel of Jesus Christ in a manner not acceptable to the attorney general of California. Read carefully and decide for yourself whether you agree with the attorney general or 83 million Americans who believe that constitutionally guaranteed religious freedom is under the most serious attack in the history of the U.S.

OF A PRESS CONFERENCE
HELD MARCH 7, 1980,
IN WASHINGTON, D.C.,

DEAN KELLEY, Executive for Religious and Civil Liberty of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America

"This conference is held to draw attention to a Friends of the Court brief in the U.S. Supreme Court. It is sponsored by the National Council of Churches and several other national religious bodies who are the Friends of the Court in this brief. We do not often hold press conferences in connection with legal briefs, but this one is unusual in that it expresses alarm about a case that arose in California but is going surprisingly unnoticed in the rest of the country.

Over a year ago, the state of California took over a Church, the Worldwide Church of God, by placing it in receivership. This was done on a complaint by a handful of dissident members that the leadership of the Church was using its assets for their own personal aggrandizement.

The attorney general of California went into court and obtained an order authorizing the appointment of a receiver. On Jan. 3, 1978, the receiver took over the Church's headquarters in Pasadena, Calif. He fired Church employees and hired armed guards, accountants and others, to occupy the Church's offices, paying them and himself at $150 an hour out of the Church's assets he was appointed to conserve.

"For almost two months, they had the run of the place, carting off records to the attorney general's office with no receipts to the Church for what was taken. The receiver stopped payment on all outstanding checks that had been written by the Church, destroying its hitherto exemplary credit rating. He called its ministers forbidding them to send money for the Church to anyone but him.

"At length, that receivership was suspended by the members posting a $3.4 million stay bond, many of them putting up their homes as surety. Still seeking evidence to support sweeping charges of criminal conduct, the attorney general is now pressing a disclosure order against them, demanding virtually every scrap of correspondence in the last 10 years. That order has been appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, and it is on that matter that this brief has been lodged.

"Our support of the appeal is not an endorsement of the Worldwide Church of God or its leadership. But we feel that if fraud or defalcation had occurred, there are adequate criminal laws under which the attorney general could have proceeded.

"What we are really alarmed about is not the single case, appalling as it is, but the theory on which the attorney general is proceeding and on which he says he has relied in other Church cases:

"That the contributions made by a Church, even by its own members alone rather than by the general public, create a charitable trust which the State has the right and obligation to oversee. Thus the Church can have no private interest adverse to the State and doesn't even really need an attorney to defend its interests before the court since it is, in his view, little more than a ward of the State.

"That doctrine is so much at variance with the U.S. Constitution and everything the Supreme Court has said about it that it is hard to believe that it has been enunciated in the United States rather than in Iran, or China or the Soviet Union."

LEO PFEFFER,
Attorney for Amici Curiae

"Those who join in this brief differ among themselves as to the appropriate, or the most appropriate way to worship or express the ecclesiastical structures of the associations. Some are hierarchical and some are congregational. Their legal structures also differ. Some are incorporated, some are incorporated under religious corporation laws, some are corporations sole, and some, like the Worldwide Church of God, are organized under general corporation statutes.

"What unites them in the submission of this brief, is a conviction that when the technicalities of statutes designed to regulate ordinary corporate activities are used and abused as instrumentalities to destroy a religious association which may be in governmental disfavor at a particular time, the result is a threat to the security of all religions. A religion favored today may be disfavored tomorrow and no religion is secure unless all religions are secure. Religious freedom is the precious heritage of all. Because they feel that the actions of the attorney general of California threaten that heritage and their own security, these associations join in the brief which we have submitted to the United States Supreme Court.

"Basically, in this unfortunate litigation, the attorney general of California has declared that Churches and religious organizations are public charitable trusts accountable to the State. He claims that all Church or Synagogue property is to be treated as public property rather than being owned by the Church or the Synagogue or its members and is therefore subject to supervision, regulation and control of the State, just like public schools or public parks. He bases this claim with an inherent power originating in the common law of England long before the First Amendment became part of our Constitution. He claims that this power has been reinforced by the California legislature and authorizes him to supervise, manage and control a Synagogue or Church on the theory that it is a ward of the State and that its affairs and operations are subject to unlimited and continuing control by the State, acting through its attorney general.

"The actions of the attorney general violate the First Amendment's ban on laws respecting an establishment of religion, because it constitutes impermissible state participation in religious affairs, because its purpose and primary effect are to restrict religion and because its action results in excessive government entanglement with religion. The action of the attorney general also violates the First Amendment's guarantee of the free exercise of religion because the State of California has not established the existence of an interest sufficiently compelling to justify infringement upon the congregants' rights to determine how and by whom their affairs shall be governed and their voluntary contributions expended."

LAURENCE H. TREISE,
Professor, Harvard Law School

"The repeated position of the attorney general of California is that he has an absolute right to know everything within the possession of the Church, and on the basis of whatever is discovered, to decide what, if anything to do. His position: That on the basis of what he discovers he has a right to permanently remove the Church's officers, to banish them from ever holding any position of trust, public or private, in the state of California; to restructure the Church from a hierarchical to a congregational form and to seek other relief as is consistent with the State's conception of how the Church should be run."

PASTOR

 putting them into situations where they could develop the character to obey Him in every respect. We don't like these trials, but should we really expect to escape them?

Notice Hebrews 11. In looking at the experiences of Christians throughout the ages, we see that they had their problems too. What has happened to me in my life is not all that unusual, but is to be expected from time to time. Note verses 32-35: "And what shall I more say? For the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets: Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Women received their dead raised to life again." So far so good. The Christian comes out on top.

But what about some statements in the rest of the chapter? "And others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection" (verse 35). Deliverance for them would have meant denying their faith.

From time to time I hope the words in verses 38-40 apply to you. "They wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth. And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

The end result
 God is actually going to make us part of His Family. Notice I John 3:1-2: "Therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is." We shall be made immortal and know Christ face to face.

Verse 3, "And every man that hath this hope." I said earlier that the doctor told me that I was lucky that I had a faith to believe in. I told him that was right and that when my wife is resurrected I will see her again. I can't tell you how much encouragement that gives me.

People become desperate when they lose a mate; they become desperate when they have to go through life with no hope. Hope is the thing that gives Christians satisfaction and comfort. No matter how hard the trial, we know that we are developing character toward that ultimate goal.

Romans 8 says it all. All of the suffering that we experience will not amount to very much when we achieve our ultimate reward. When we know that God is for us, it does not matter that others may be against us. Nothing can separate us from Jesus Christ.

My wife said two things just before she died that I would like to share with you. She said, first of all, in quoting Mrs. Loma Armstrong, who died in 1967, "Now you fellows get on and do the Work." Then her final message was: "Hang in there and be in the Kingdom. It doesn't matter what life does to me, and it doesn't matter what life does to you. I hope we will be in God's Kingdom."

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

By the light of the full moon, several families pitched tents April 3 to enjoy a long weekend of fun and fellowship during the Days of Unleavened Bread. Eighty people attended the camp-out at Whangateau, 50 miles north of AUCKLAND, New Zealand. The next day, Friday, all played volleyball and softball. Then a spit-roasted sheep and goat were served. The dessert was in the form of spiritual nourishment — a Bible study given by minister Bill Sidney, who also conducted Sabbath services the next day. Saturday evening, the children enjoyed playing with balloons and games. All those who attended look forward to the next camp-out. Jane Logan.

It was the year 2001 for the BINGHAMTON-CORNING, N.Y., YOU April 12. Everyone came dressed in their favorite costumes of the 21st century. A Bible study took place before the party. Deacon Richard Furney spoke about "Is it legal to go steady?" After the study, everyone donned their costumes and made dinner for themselves and chaperones Mr. and Mrs. Mark Borgna and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carl. It was a late night of dancing, playing games and other activities. Curfew was midnight.

Then on Sunday, a fun-talent show was on the agenda. Members sang, told jokes, did commercials and other routines. After the show, there was a track practice and lunch was prepared. It was a fun-filled weekend that was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. Gloria Stevens.

"Age is no barrier to service in God's Church and in the Work of God." This was the theme of a "Fifties and Over" seminar given by pastor David Noller April 20 in BRISBANE, Australia. About four dozen members attended the seminar at Mr. Noller's home. Mr. Noller reminded his guests of some of the ways in which they could contribute to the Work. He pointed out that although the elderly should be respected as leaders they needed to work at earning that respect. Examples and principles were given from both the Old and New Testaments. Also, Mr. Noller outlined how the Seniors' Club would be organized for the next six months. A lively discussion ensued on the types of activities in which they wished to participate. Clive Baker.

More than 40 people met for the first meeting of the CAMBRIDGE, England, church April 19. Members from the surrounding area of East Anglia have been attending fortnightly Bible studies for several years. Because the congregation has increased over the last few years, there are now enough local brethren to warrant regular Sabbath services.

Edward Smith delivered a sermon on the identity of God's Church and its purpose, pointing out that even the smaller members of the spiritual body have an important role to play. "It is not the Church's aim to attract as many people as possible," he said, "but now that a church has been established in this area, we should pray for growth and welcome anyone new attending as a result of requests for visits by local subscribers to The Plain Truth. Mrs. Smith accompanied the services' hymns and performed special music. The church will meet every two weeks. Tim Davies.

The CHILLIWACK, B.C., congregation and friends closed their winter social activities with a potluck supper and pie-baking competition April 12.

the end of the World Tomorrow broadcast offered additional publicity. Steve Golden.

Fifty members of the KENOSHA, Wis., church enjoyed an evening of bowling April 12. The highest score was about 150. After exercising unused muscles, most of the weary and happy bowlers retired to a clubhouse for snacks, games and friendly conversation. The group relished fellowship so much that they were reluctant to leave, even at 1:30 a.m. Connie McClure.

The Night to Be Much Observed was kept by the MOUNT POCONO, Pa., brethren at the Mayfair Supper Club. The meal was a smorgasbord with unleavened dessert made by Church member Kurt Felten. A freak snowstorm prevented some of the brethren from being there. It is hoped all the local brethren can keep the evening together next year. Margie Storm.

The NASSAU, Bahamas, church had its annual kite contest at Highbury Park April 13. The contestants were between the ages of 4 and 19 years. First prize was awarded to the person with the prettiest homemade kite. The winner was 14-year-old Yvette Harper. Eleven-year-old Dario Rolle won second prize for the highest flying kite, 15-year-old Charlene Moss won third prize for the longest flying kite and a consolation prize was awarded to 9-year-old Stephen Mather for having the largest kite. The prizes were provided by the Spokesman Club. Desmond Curling.

The PASCO, Wash., church played host to brethren from the YAKIMA and QUINCY, churches, April 7. The 128 members who attended enjoyed a delicious prime rib and fried chicken buffet garnished with ample supplies of vegetables and fruit salads and unleavened cheesecake. After dinner, YOU members joined the adults for dancing. Those not inclined to dancing enjoyed fellowship with friends in the beautiful surroundings of the Holiday Inn's Lewis and Clark Room. All agreed the evening had added something to the Spring Holy Days. Dennis R. Leap.

The SAN DIEGO, Calif., church talent blossomed forth at the "Spring Sing," a Variety show at Penasquitos Elementary School April 12. Duane Bechtold, who introduced the acts, and choir director Jim Walker combined efforts to put the show together. Among the many numbers was a presentation of "On a Clear Day," by PASADENA soloist Sallee Toms.

Nancy Parker prepared and managed the slide presentation, which accompanied special numbers by the church choir. Pianist Margaret Walker and guitarist Frank Espinoza were accompanists throughout the show. John McMullin Jr., managed the sound equipment and doubled as photographer. The children's choir presented special numbers under the direction of Richard Dalton. Susan Karoska.

Music was provided by Al Neighbour and his musicians from the VANCOUVER, B.C., church. Following the difficult pie judging, the pies were auctioned by Mr. Neighbour. He gained good prices and much fun for everybody. The funds will be used in church socials and youth activities. Many shared their purchases, and then the event closed with a sing-along. Al Hankey.

About 30 members of the CORNING, N.Y., church attended a leadership seminar conducted by pastor Britton Taylor at the Ramada Inn March 9. The topic for the first session was setting goals and self-motivation. Local elder Lawson Price conducted the second session; "qualities of leadership in the business world" was his subject. After a luncheon, Mr. Taylor discussed Christian leadership in the local church. This was followed by a question-and-answer period. Everyone agreed that the seminar was very inspiring and all look forward to another possible seminar in the future. Nancy Saylor.

The DETROIT, Mich., EAST public Bible lectures April 11 and 12 attracted 89 new people, many of whom stayed to ask questions. The lectures consisted of an introduction by minister Randy D'Allesandro explaining what the Worldwide Church of God is and the Work it is doing. Pastor Earl Williams followed with the main message. For Friday night's lecture, Mr. Williams focused on prophetic events concerning America in relation to the return of Jesus Christ. Sabbath morning he described who and what God is and His plan for mankind. Helping to make the lecture successful was a choir made up of members from five local churches.

Letters sent from Pasadena announced the lectures to local Plain Truth subscribers. Inserts in newsstand magazines and spot announcements at

PLANTATION TOUR — Members of the Baton Rouge, La., Women's Club pose under 280-year-old live oak trees at Oak Alley Plantation. (See "Club Meetings," this page.)

Members of the ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., church enjoyed a 17-mile canoe trip down the Alafia River, located east of TAMPA, Fla., April 20. About midway along the trip, the group of 57 enjoyed a riverbank picnic lunch atop a grassy knoll alongside the river. The narrow, challenging river, with its numerous white water shoals and its natural canopy of overhanging oak, cypress and cabbage palm trees, provided a very relaxing change of pace for all. *Lavene L. In WICHITA, Kan., 225 Church members gathered at the Cotillion Ballroom for a social April 13. Music was by the popular Newt Graber band. The occasion was used to honor Mr. and Mrs. Ray Schellenger with a cake, a card of congratulations and a money gift on their 65th wedding anniversary.

The occasion was also used to thank minister Jerold Aust and family before they move to their new assignment in Portland, Ore. The congregation presented the Austs with an electric fondue, a card table and chairs, a set of Adam Clarke's commentaries, a letter opener and — to Mr. Aust's joy — a deer rifle complete with scope, leather sling, ammunition and leather carrying case. These gifts showed appreciation for the years of the Austs' leadership and service to the Wichita church. Jack Williams.

CLUB MEETINGS

Twelve inches of rain didn't dampen the spirits of the BATON ROUGE, La., Women's Club on April 13. Despite flooded roads and the threat of bad weather, the group toured two antebellum homes on the famous river road between Baton Rouge and New Orleans, La. The historic Homas House was the group's first stop. The three-story white-columned mansion was built between 1800-1840 and was headquarters at one time for the largest sugar-producing plantation in America. It has been featured in many famous magazines and films.

After a sack lunch, the club made its way down the winding Mississippi River to Oak Alley mansion near Vacherie, La. Oak Alley was completed in 1839. The mansion is graced by 28 Doric columns, each eight feet in circumference. The club was particularly impressed by the double row of magnificent live oak trees that frame the entrance to the mansion. The trees are 280 years old and are 15 to 29 feet in circumference. The branches interlace to form a canopy from the Mississippi River to the mansion. Robert D. Vernon.

The Ladies Clubs from the CINCINNATI, Ohio, NORTH and EAST congregations met for a combined meeting and brunch April 13. Jean Pulliam led the more than 100 women present in table topics. Hostess Dolores Witham introduced Carol Boeckley, Betty Welborn, Debbie Valerius and Myrtle Grant, who gave icebreakers.

Pastor Reinhold Fuessel introduced Jack Pakozdi, the new pastor of Cincinnati North. Mary Dowd presented Mr. and Mrs. Fuessel with an anniversary clock as a departing gift from the club. Lastly, Mr. Fuessel gave an overview of topics covered in club this year. Included were developing talents, working on being more bold in a positive manner and working out one's own salvation under the authority of God's government. Vonda Partin.

A combined meeting of the NORTH and SOUTH LONDON, England, Ladies Clubs took place April 16. Gentlemen guests were invited to the evening of friendship and fellowship. A light meal was provided with refreshments. Speeches were given on safety in the home and at work. Margaret French.

The MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Spokesman Club recently met twice within a week. In the April 16 meeting, club president Terry Lundberg, a Norwegian, surprised the members by handing out Norwegian flags and badges made by the Lundberg children. Also, Norwegian sandwiches and delicacies along with travel folders, pictures and maps of Norway were displayed. After Mr. Lundberg gave a short discourse on the eating habits of Norwegians, club members were invited to partake of the beautifully prepared food.

On April 20 the club met with their families at a gun club in Elk River, Minn. Speeches were given out-of-doors. Then, in a trap shoot, even the children participated. Alonzo Gjesvold and Ed Franzen tied in breaking the most clay pigeons. Some of the women were wondering how best to prepare the clay pigeons. James R. Steinle.

SINGLES SCENE

Continuous sunshine prevailed as singles from six countries assembled in LEICESTER, England, at one of the University of Leicester's residence halls April 3-6.

On Friday morning there was squash, horseback riding, tennis, a car tour and a hike to Bradgate Park, once home of Lady Jane Grey, the nine-day Queen of England. Bible study that evening was conducted by pastor Paul Suckling. Evangelist Frank Brown set the theme for the weekend in his Sabbath sermon, "The Goal of the Kingdom." He explained how to achieve short-term, medium-term and, more importantly, long-term goals. The activity for the evening was a square dance to the music of Harmony, a group of entertainers mainly from the NORTH LONDON, England, church. On Sunday morning a panel of ministers including Mr. Brown, Mr. Suckling, Francis Bergen and Owen Willis fielded questions.

The weekend exceeded most people's expectations and will be the first of many similar activities. United Singles, under whose auspices the event was organized, has nearly 300 members in the United Kingdom and Ireland. Its purpose is to not just a California case but one example of the growing intrusion of the government, both state and federal, into the affairs of religious bodies. The author, Glen A. Holman of the director of the Office of State Affairs of the California Church Council, continued: "... if the church [speaking of the views of the various religious organizations] wants to pay its minister a salary of $200,000 a year or if the Roman Catholic Church wants to buy a [Boeing] 707 [jet] for the pope, that is the business of the churches, and there's no compelling reason for the state to get entangled."

Concerning the bill to limit the attorney general's powers, Mr. Holman concluded, "The issue of the separation of the church and state is clearly before the California legislature — and it's time they made sure the wall of separation is not crumbling."

FOCUS ON YOUTH

YOUTH SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE IN QUICK ACTION

FORT WAYNE, Ind. — Thomas Aungst, 16, was watching his newspaper route Dec. 13 when a woman came running, crying for help from a house that just left. Reaching quickly, Tom ran inside and found the 87-year-old Bessie Cramer, lying on the floor. She had suffered a stroke.

Tom went to the phone to call for assistance, and with the woman, a friend of Mrs. Cramer's, reached a doctor. Because of the friend's near hysteria, Tom explained the situation to the doctor. The doctor arrived, helped Mrs. Cramer to bed, saying she had a mild seizure, and then left.

But Tom waited another 15 minutes and decided to call the Emergency Medical Station. They arrived almost immediately and took the woman to the hospital. On the way, she stopped breathing but was revived by the crew, her life saved by Tom's concern and quick action.

THOMAS AUNGST

The woman had had a seizure the previous evening that left her unable to move or speak, and was found on the floor by the friend who alerted Tom.

Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Aungst Sr., then residents of Albion, Ind. The family has since moved to Florida where they attend services at the Tampa church.

UPDATE

PASADENA — The Plain Truth United States newsstand program has produced more than 400,000 subscriber responses since its inception in mid-1975, according to PT newsstand distribution manager John LaBissoniere.

Speaking to a luncheon meeting of 25 Los Angeles, Calif., area PT newsstand representatives, Mr. LaBissoniere stated that from the 400,000 figure, more than 3,500 have become donors to God's Work. The U.S. PT distribution manager also pointed out that 40 to 50 percent of new PT subscribers come through the program.

Auditorium P.M. assistant pastor Robin Webber also addressed the group, stating that brethren involved in the newsstand program were "directly a link in the preaching of the Gospel." He paraphrased 1 Corinthians 3:6, relating: "... The Plain Truth plants, our ministers water and God gives the increase."

Gonzalez pastors the Bogota, Colombia, church.

Mr. Matthews also reports that the ordination of Philip Shields to preaching elder Nov. 24, 1979, was not previously announced. Mr. Shields was raised in rank by Collin Wilkins and is pastor of the Fredrickson, St. John and Moncton, N.B., churches.

5. If you need assistance in any way in making your Feast plans for 1980 contact your church pastor or Festival adviser.

PASADENA — Fall enrollment at Ambassador College for the 1980-81 academic year is "nearly full," according to Raymond F. McNair, Ambassador College deputy chancellor. Mr. McNair reports that "we expect to only be able to accept one out of every three who apply to enter." The deputy chancellor notes that the college registrar's office is no longer sending out application forms for the 1980 fall term because of the high level of response.

Students attending Ambassador College are afforded several advantages not available at other institutions. Mr. McNair points out that several students will be traveling to Europe and Israel this summer to take part in archaeological excavations, while another group will work in the Kingdom of Thailand to help Cambodian, Laotian and Vietnamese refugees. This summer, Ambassador College students will also serve as counselors and activities staffers at the Church's Summer Educational Program (SEP) sites in Minnesota and Scotland, and four undergraduate men will work as summer ministerial trainees [see WN, May 5].

Mr. McNair also reports that about 50 Japanese students will again be studying English, American history and culture on the Ambassador campus this summer in a continuation of a program started by the Ambassador International Cultural Foundation (AICF) in 1975. The deputy chancellor notes that the program was made possible by contacts through Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong in the nation of Japan.

PASADENA — Two of the world's "most prominent musical stars" will be performing under the auspices of the Ambassador Interna-

The Ormandy concert will be presented in the Civic Auditorium facility to accommodate the "large demand for seating," according to Mr. Shilkret. He also notes that Maestro Ormandy, now completing 44 years as music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, has "specifically requested" a concert date with the orchestra in the Ambassador Auditorium during the 1980-81 season. He related that Maestro Ormandy desired to conduct in the Auditorium and the 1980-81 appearance of Mr. Ormandy will be the only Southern California performance during that year.

The performances by the Philadelphia Orchestra and soprano Price will bring the AICF's "Great Performer Subscription Series" to a close for the 1979-80 season.

PASADENA — More than 44 percent of the United States Festival applications have been received and processed by the Data Processing Center here, according to Dr. William Kessler of the Festival Operations Office.

Dr. Kessler reports that problems with the new system of transferring and making reservations are minimal. He states that if present trends continue, "most, if not all, transfers [in the United States] will be approved." All members and co-workers are urged to send in their applications and title of the title "as soon as possible" to enable final arrangements at all U.S. sites to be completed.

PASADENA — Members desiring to change their transfer requests should submit a second Festival application, according to Dr. William Kessler of the Festival Operations Office. Members and co-workers should get a new application from their Festival adviser. He will write the words transfer change underneath the site code box.

Dr. Kessler reports that members should not mail their applications to Pasadena, as all applications must be routed through the Tucson data center for processing.

The Festival Office also asks that brethren plan their Feast carefully to avoid transfer changes, which cause extra work for the Festival staff. Dr. Kessler noted that all requests will be accommodated when possible, but all applications must have the local pastor's signature.

Pastor General OK's PT, book promotion

PASADENA — Two new plans to help promote The Plain Truth magazine and distribute Herbert W. Armstrong's Everest House books were approved by the pastor general and are being implemented, according to Publishing Services.

Attractively designed cardholders with postcards offering a six-month free subscription to The Plain Truth magazine are being sent to all U.S. pastors. Brethren in the United States can participate by working with their pastors in placing the cardholders on public bulletin boards.

"Some of the major national magazines, including Time, Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report, have used this method with a good deal of success," reports Boyd Leeson, circulation manager for The Plain Truth.

"Brethren just obtain permission to install the cardholders and then keep them filled," said Mr. Leeson. "The test results we have using this method indicate promise in helping to raise the circulation of The Plain Truth."

Members can also become involved in distributing copies of Mr. Armstrong's books, The Incredible Human Potential and Tomorrow... What It Will Be Like, to their libraries, according to the circulation manager.

"Many public and college libraries have a request system whereby patrons of the library can suggest the purchase of a particular book," he said. "If three or four members request the library obtain a copy of Mr. Armstrong's books, there is a good chance they will order it." Mr. Leeson also noted that it doesn't cost the Work any money, yet provides an effective means to help distribute Mr. Armstrong's material. If the library cannot purchase the books because of a limited budget, brethren may arrange for a donation of the books through the local church.

"Precautions should be taken to insure that the books don't end up on the 'forsale' shelf or in some dark, forgotten storage bin," warns Mr. Leeson.

Program details and instructions have been mailed to all U.S. pastors, and members can contact them for additional information about these new programs. "We hope that many brethren and co-workers will take this opportunity to get involved," states the PT circulation manager, "as it affords a great deal of 'ground support' for Mr. Armstrong and the Work."

HWA postpones ministers' conference

PASADENA — Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong has directed that the 1980 Ministerial Conference scheduled for June be delayed until next year, according to Ministerial Services head Joseph Tkach Sr. He states that Mr. Armstrong is "extremely pleased" with the direction of the Church worldwide and felt that the new Ministerial Refreshing Program to begin in July would make a full-scale conference unnecessary at this time.

The Ministerial Refreshing Program will replace the old sabbatical tenure and will bring small groups of ministers and their wives to Pasadena at intervals throughout the year. The ministers will be afforded three weeks of lectures, seminars and fellowship before returning to their congregations. Mr. Tkach states that this new program, coupled with the "proven effectiveness" of the weekly Pastor General's Report in reaching individual ministers, caused Mr. Armstrong to reevaluate the need for the conference in June.

Of special note, relates the evangelist, is "Mr. Armstrong's confidence in the ministry... reflected in his decision to delay a conference until later."

Mr. Tkach says that the decision will be "disappointing for many who were anticipating the conference and the time of fellowshiping together," but notes that the funds earmarked for use at the conference will be put into other areas of God's Work, thus furthering the great commission.

The Ministerial Services director also reports that the decision frees up additional time for Mr. Armstrong's "heavy schedule" this summer. The pastor general is planning to fly to Israel and Egypt for meetings with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and other dignitaries. Mr. Armstrong is also scheduled to speak at both sessions of the 1980 Summer Educational Program [SEP] in Orr, Minn. [see SEP, page 1]. In addition to his daily administrative duties and tasks, Mr. Armstrong will be preparing for a campaign in the Philippines this fall [see WN, April 7].
