Plain Truth circulation soars to worldwide records in 1982

PASADENA — Despite an international recession, 1982 was a banner year for worldwide circulation of The Plain Truth, said PT circulation managers around the globe in interviews with The Worldwide News.

In less than 12 months The Plain Truth broke through the four and five million circulation marks, and now tops 5.3 million.

Much of the increase came in the United States.

"Nineteen eighty-two was the biggest year ever for Plain Truth circulation," said Boyd Leeson, U.S. Plain Truth circulation manager.

"Our January, 1983, issue was distributed to over 42 percent more subscribers than in January, 1982.

"Looking back at 1982, you can see that we added nearly the same amount of new subscribers that we added in 1980 and 1981 combined," Mr. Leeson said.

Thirty percent of the 1.2 million new subscribers responded to offers by Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong on the World Tomorrow program on radio and TV.

Another 23 percent subscribed after reading a newsstand copy of The Plain Truth, and 16 percent came from blow-in cards in the magazine.

The remaining 31 percent came from cardholder responses, newspaper inserts, PT literature cards and other sources, he said.

Australian response

The Australian edition of The Plain Truth grew 13.6 percent in circulation to 63,640 subscribers, according to Reg Wright, circulation manager for The Plain Truth in Australia.

"Throughout 1982 new subscribers requesting the Plain Truth magazine in response to advertising in TV Week magazine, the newsstand program and the television and radio broadcast, totaled 31,937. This represents a 168.9 percent increase in new subscribers," he said.

Mr. Wright added that the Work in Australia also distributes 80,000 copies of The Plain Truth on newsstands each month.

"In Asia the Plain Truth mailing list... stood at 41,540 readers, a 30.7 percent increase over the same period last year," Mr. Wright continued. He added that 10,778 new subscribers were added "primarily through word of mouth, or seeing a friend's copy."

"The exceptionally high interest shown by Asian readers in The Plain Truth is indicated by an average 74 percent response to our ongoing renewal program," he said.

Spanish growth

"Last year was the best year for circulation growth," said Keith Speaks, circulation and promotion manager for La Pura Verdad (Spanish Plain Truth).

"At the end of 1982, we had 194,882 subscribers to La Pura Verdad, with another 23,500 copies distributed monthly on the newsstands.

"We had an original goal of 200,000 circulation, but because of budgetary considerations, we scaled that back to 187,000, which we topped," he said.

The figure represents an 80 percent increase overall, with more than 90 percent increase in subscriptions, he said.

Mr. Speaks attributed the growth primarily to the distribution of Pura Verdad cardholders, advertising campaigns in 22 countries and the newsstand program.

"A lot of our growth came in Spain and Argentina," Mr. Speaks noted. "We tripled our distribution in Argentina and increased the PV circulation by 250 percent in Spain."

The increased distribution also provided greater exposure to Mr. Armstrong's semiannual letters to Plain Truth subscribers, which were translated into Spanish and distributed for the first time.

"Those letters from late 1981 and middle 1982 accounted for a 44 percent increase in our mail received," Mr. Speaks said.

Quality response in England

"Nineteen eighty-two was a year of good, steady growth," said David Gunn, Plain Truth circulation manager for the United Kingdom, Scandinavia, the Middle East and East and West Africa under regional director Frank Brown.

"In Britain, subscriptions went over 90,000, the highest since the early '70s," he said. Another 50,000 PTs are distributed monthly on newsstands in London and Birmingham, England.

"We had a very successful advertising campaign using two ads written by Mr. Armstrong for the British public," Mr. Gunn continued. "One was headlined: 'How Will You Survive World War III' and the other, 'The Peril to Your Life Grows.'"

The ads ran in several major English magazines and newspapers, including The Sunday Times of London, the Atlantic editions of Time and Newsweek, Daily Express, The Daily Telegraph and The Observer.

The circulation of The Plain Truth doubled to more than 10,000 in Scandinavia in 1982. "We expect it to rise to 25,000 by the end of 1983," Mr. Gunn said.

The European continent has a "very healthy" circulation of 27,000 English Plain Truths, he continued. More than 5,000 copies circulate in the Middle East.

In East and West Africa more than 30,000 copies circulate monthly, and that figure may go to 40,000 in 1983 "if funds permit," Mr. Gunn said.

"We have no trouble building a large circulation of the magazine in Africa," he continued. "We are concentrating on building a quality audience."

RISING RECORDS — Plain Truth international circulation has more than tripled since 1977. The dip in 1979 was the result of cutbacks during the receivership on the Church. Smaller dips reflect ongoing renewal programs. [Artwork by Ron Grove]

Minister makes seven-nation tour for PT

PASADENA — "Most people don't really understand what Eastern Europe went through during World War II," said John Halford, a pastor-ranked minister serving in the Media Services Department here, Jan. 12.

Mr. Halford, author of "International Desk" in The Plain Truth, made the comment after a seven-nation tour of the Caribbean, Eastern Europe and Southeast Asia he completed Jan. 9.

other journal, magazine or newspaper," he continued.

The Czechoslovaks accepted the conditions, and Mr. Armstrong approved the trip.

As the trip was planned, stops in Haiti, West and East Germany, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Thailand were added to conduct further business for The Plain Truth, the French Department and Ambassador College.

"I visited the Haitian brethren with Mr. [Dibar] Apartian [regional director of God's Work in French-speaking areas] on the first leg [WN, Dec. 27], flying on to Bonn, West Germany, to meet Mr. [Frank] Schnee [regional director of the Work in German-speaking areas]. The next day [Dec. 21] we traveled to Prague in Czechoslovakia," Mr. Halford said.

In Prague as guests of the government tourist agency, Mr. Halford and Mr. Schnee interviewed government officials, and the leader of an active religious group.

"I believe The Plain Truth will provide an interesting new insight into the problems of Eastern Europe and Czechoslovakia in particular. The Plain Truth has both something to say to and about the Czechoslovaks," he added.

Continuing, he said: "America doesn't really understand how upfront the memories of the destruction of World War II are in the Eastern European mind. Whole towns and families were brutally wiped out. The Soviet Union alone lost 20 million people in defending their homeland. They have very real memories."

From Czechoslovakia, Mr. Halford traveled to Austria, where he visited the Church's youth winter camp and gave a sermon Dec. 25. "They'll have to call this camp WEP [Winter Educational Program] instead of SEP," he said.

He remained in Vienna, Austria, for four days, conducting additional research for The Plain Truth.

Mr. Halford then met with Paul Kieffer, pastor of the Berlin, Hamburg and Hannover, West Germany, churches and they entered Poland Dec. 31.

Mr. Halford and Mr. Kieffer visited Wiktor Przybyla, the lone Church member in Poland. "He's doing very well," Mr. Halford said.

"Not long ago, Wiktor received a letter from some disenfranchised Church members. They tried to warn him that ours is not a giving church."

"But Wiktor explained to us: 'I wrote back and told them that they had picked the wrong time to dip poison on me.'"

"That same day several packages of food and clothing arrived from members in West Germany. In the past year, he has received so much help that he has had to build a special closet to store it.

"Wiktor deeply appreciates the many pen friends that have written to him. But he asked us to explain that it is hard for him to reply personally. Wages in Poland are low and postage is expensive. A card to (See MINISTER, page 3)

Pushing Japan down a dangerous path

PASADENA — Who, in 1945, could have believed that by late 1982 American officials would be calling a proposed 6.5 percent increase in Japanese military spending inadequate?

Nevertheless, the U.S. State and Defense departments, in a joint statement Dec. 30, said that "more significant progress... needs to be made" by Japan in improving its self-defense capabilities.

The U.S. Defense Department would like to see Japan go beyond mere defense of its home islands and eventually assume the burden for the defense of vital Pacific sea-lanes up to 1,000 miles from the Japanese coast. The reason for this is the gradual drawing down of U.S. Seventh Fleet strength in the Pacific in order to transfer facilities to the Indian Ocean and Persian Gulf region.

The United States fears that Soviet Far East strength, which continues to grow unabated, will cow Japan into a neutralized position unless the Japanese do more for their own defense.

Prime minister approves

The pressure for Japan to rearm further seems logical, on the surface at least. Japan has had more or less a free ride on defense since 1945, spending annually less than 1 percent of its gross national product on defense, compared to about 6.6 percent for the United States.

To keep Japan pacified after the war, the United States undertook the role of Japan's defender. But in the face of severe balance-of-trade deficits with Japan year after year ($20 billion in 1982 alone), this big brother arrangement no longer seems appropriate — at least to American officials with a short-range view of history.

Japan's dynamic new prime minister, Yasuhiro Nakasone, appears to want to please the United States on the defense spending issue. In his first press conference after assuming office Nov. 26, Mr. Nakasone said: "I believe that our country's defense efforts have not been adequate. And I understand the argument put forward by the U.S. and its European allies that Japan should increase its military spending now that it has become a great economic power."

Despite still deep-set antiwar feelings among the Japanese public, Mr. Nakasone has considerable support from within his ruling Liberal Democratic Party for a militarily stronger Japan. Last spring, about when U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger visited Japan to urge a big increase in military spending, several hundred prominent Japanese, including 58 members of parliament, demanded a revision of the Japanese-U.S. securitary treaty, which goes back to 1952 (and amended in 1960).

Declaring that the treaty represented a "stain on our national pride," the group maintained that it was "inexcusable for Japan to continue to rely on the United States," and called for a vast expansion of military forces.

Some members urged that the no-war clause in the constitution be eliminated, and even broached the ultimate taboo by suggesting that Japan acquire nuclear weapons.

Down through the years, Mr. Nakasone, while certainly no militarist, has repeatedly said that Japan's U.S.-composed postwar constitution should be changed to give legitimacy to the military forces Japan already has.

Article 9 of the constitution states that "Japan will never maintain land, sea and air forces, as well as other potential forces for war."

This, of course, is totally out of date, Japan long having possessed land, sea and air "self-defense" forces. In fact, Japan is the world's eighth-largest military power.

Political price

Thus, by sheer force of events, a change in the power relationship between the United States and Japan and between Japan and its Asian neighbors appears inevitable. But there is, notes Ronald Steel, a "political price to pay" for the course America seems to want Japan to take.

In the Dec. 16 International Herald Tribune, Mr. Steel writes:

"American taxpayers have every reason to ask why, 37 years after the end of the war, they are still paying for the defense of a country that is their greatest economic challenger and obviously has the means to pay its military bills. All this makes economic sense.

"But there is a political price to pay — one which American officials are curiously unaware of. If Japan starts rearming in a big way, it will not let its diplomacy be made in Washington. It will start making its political and military influence felt throughout Asia, as most Asians fear, and will be far less willing to take its cues from Washington.

"It means the end of the kind of relationship America has had with Japan since 1945.

"This is the price for pushing Japan to rearm. It may be an unavoidable price, for the alternative is to continue military protectorship that the American people cannot sustain without economic sacrifice.

"But this is not what American officials had in mind when they prodded the Japanese to increase military spending. Judging by the direction of events in Tokyo, they may now have to live with the problems of their dream come true."

Warnings from Asia

Leaders in Asia old enough to remember the bitter years of Japanese imperialism are also warning

Washington — seemingly to no avail — of the consequences of its "logical" action.

Carlos Romulo, the 84-year-old foreign minister of the Philippines, told a United Press International interviewer Dec. 29 that the United States was making a serious mistake by pushing Japan to beef up its military might, and Japan was equally wrong to listen.

"Those who ignore history tend to become its victims," said Mr. Romulo, who served as Gen. Douglas MacArthur's aide-de-camp in the Philippines during World War II.

"I've always said the United States should be very careful about making Japan its surrogate for the defense of the Pacific," added Mr. Romulo.

"The Japanese are very determined people; they have brains," said Mr. Romulo. "At the end of World War II, no one thought that Japan would become the foremost economic power in the world — but they are. If you give them the chance to become a military power — they will become a military power" (emphasis ours).

"We must be careful not to encourage any aggressive designs," said Mr. Romulo, "or another prosperity sphere. Back in 1918, I told my American classmates [at Columbia University in New York City] to beware of the Japanese, and my American classmates said, 'Those jokers wouldn't dare.' Well, they dared and Pearl Harbor is the witness."

Danger signals up

Mr. Romulo, one of the last surviving framers and signatories of the 1945 United Nations charter, said (See JAPAN, page 11)

Develop godly patience

In our local supermarket I watched a woman who was in a hurry. She had a few items in her hands, and her whole manner radiated impatience — shifting her weight from foot to foot, casting sharp glances at the other checkout lines, shaking her head, mumbling in frustration, biting her lip, looking disgusted and annoyed.

This shopper was a living example of the dictionary definition of impatience: "uneasy, intolerant and unwilling to be kept waiting."

Sometimes, we are forced to wait, however, and for many of us waiting is almost intolerable. Few things annoy us more than traffic jams, bureaucratic red tape or when an important letter or decision does not arrive.

Everybody knows that in traffic jams or at airline ticket counters a line or queue you're not in is the line that moves fastest. Some people constantly dart back and forth from one line to another. I sometimes do this myself.

I've thought about that woman in the supermarket. Why was she so impatient? Was there a good reason for her to be in such a hurry? Did her impatience spill over into her manner of driving when she left the store with her purchases? Was it her total life-style?

The Bible mentions impatience frequently. God's Word instructs us to wait, and we are given exhortations to be patient.

But how do we do this? How do we handle our tendencies to be impatient?

We learn patience first by changing our attitudes and the ways we look at life.

We admire punctuality, value good organization and time management, condemn ourselves when we procrastinate or are late, and sometimes complain about wasting too much time.

We expect on-the-spot, up-to-date reports from the news media. College students try to hurry through school, and are praised when they rise rapidly in the business world after graduation.

As Church members, we get impatient too. We admire rapid Church growth, we like to hear of numerous baptisms worldwide and we get impatient when our spiritual growth is slow.

We must remember that quality and not quantity is more important in our Christian growth. Quality requires patience.

Here's an example of striving to make quality time work the first time. I was walking through one of the departments on campus the other day and saw this saying on the bulletin board: "There's never enough time to do it right, but it seems there's always time to do it over again."

To create quality time in our lives, we must change our thinking. And that isn't easy, especially when we've spent a lifetime learning to be impatient. We really only learn patience by seeking and asking for God's help (James 5:7,8, Revised Authorized Version throughout).

We develop patience as God's Holy Spirit works in our daily lives to bring peace and to make us more like Him.

Remember the verse, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace..." And what else? "Patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control" (Galatians 5:22,23).

The ability to accept delay. Or disappointment. To smile at setbacks and respond with a pleasant, understanding spirit. To remain calm while others around are uneasy. This is godly patience.

Try this next time you are kept waiting for an appointment. Maintain a gracious attitude and think of useful things to do. Pray, think about plans, or read. (Which, of course isn't recommended in traffic. My wife saw a woman doing needlepoint and driving 60 miles an hour down a freeway!) This can keep you from getting angry and more impatient.

We can ask God to help us develop the patience He desires, and we can expect that He will answer. Remember, however, that this prayer may not be answered quickly.

A great biblical example of patience was Abraham.

Abraham believed that God would be true to His promise of giving him and his wife Sarah a son, but the couple got impatient.

When Abraham was 86 and Sarah was in her mid-70s — well beyond menopause — they took matters into their own hands. Well, you know the story (see Genesis 16).

At first this seemed like an effective way to hurry God along and get things done. But his taking of Sarah's handmaid, Hagar, was followed by marital friction and tension. The end result of Abraham's impatience was stress, signs of immaturity and intolerance.

God helped the family straighten things out, and He forgave Abraham for his impatience.

Then do you remember what happened?

Nothing!

For 14 years Abraham and Sarah waited, still without children. They might have been in a hurry, but God was not. He showed the patience that Abraham lacked.

What about us when it comes to that long overdue healing, that job promotion or the calling of an unconverted mate? Or that husband or wife you so desperately need? Are we practicing godly patience?

Sometimes God gives us patience by making us wait. We cannot expect to have everything easy in this life. "In the world you will have tribulation" (John 16:33). Paul exhorted us that "we must through many tribulations enter the Kingdom of God" (Acts 14:22).

We must patiently endure hardships and heartaches until Christ returns. Whether they be small frustrations or large, we need to do as James exhorted: "You also be patient. Establish your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is at hand" (James 5:8).

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Spiritual example

Your well researched articles like "Soviet Changing of the Guard: What Now?" [Nov. 29], much detailed, exclusively documented and perfectly written without any typing mistakes are perfect examples of what we as a Church should strive for spiritually.

Why, you went so far as to research the new Soviet leader's birth date and curriculum vita. What an inspiration to us to always try to do the best possible and never settle for second best or anything less!

Like in other Church publications, names are rightly spelled, maps correctly drawn and artworks well put. We do not overlook such things and hence congratulations.

Articles under "Local Church News" are an inspiration to us who are isolated. I vicariously take part in different church activities and look forward to the world tomorrow — planning and preparing for it now.

Marriage guidelines

I just received my Worldwide News, as I was reading over the titles one caught my eye and I began reading. I realized it was just the thing I need, so I got my Bible study notebook and began taking notes. It was Mr. [Dexter] Faulkner's article on solving marital problems [Dec. 13]. I hope to put it into practice using the Four Ps as my guidelines to improve my own marriage. I know with God's guidance and putting Him first in my life that my marriage will achieve all that I can hope for and more.

Life of an Ambassador student

Thank you for writing the fine article about the life of a student! Now I can understand better how busy all of you at Ambassador must be! Now I can pray better too for you all at the college and ask God that you all may gladly keep this schedule, so that you may have very profitable years, so that you may learn to be shining lights to others and bring much gladness into this dark world!

 systems was eased with the introduction of a new, less expensive international magazine distribution rate by the British postal system in 1982.

"That was a major blessing," Mr. Gunn said. "It brought down the rate of distributing The Plain Truth significantly."

He also pointed out some problems in building a newsstand circulation.

"We can't distribute newsstand copies like it is done in the United States," he said. "We have to pay our distributors for each copy to insure their commitment."

This was illustrated in a letter Mr. Gunn received Jan. 17.

"This was from a distributor in Birmingham. A person of a certain religious affiliation approached the newsstand owner and asked him to remove The Plain Truth from his stand."

"The religious individual was quoted by the owner as saying, 'God will reward you if you take that magazine off your stand.'"

"The manager responded: 'When your God rewards me three pennies a copy like The Plain Truth does, then you come back and talk to me.'
 "In England," Mr. Gunn said, "nothing is for free."

Solid response in Canada

In Canada, Plain Truth distribution rose by 30 percent, while La Pure Verite (French Plain Truth) subscriptions increased by 126.5 percent, according to George Patrickson, assistant to Canadian regional director Colin Adair.

"A major advertising campaign in a group of publications with a total of 7.2 million circulation and other ongoing circulation programs brought 111,574 Plain Truth subscriptions and 52,000 new Pure Verite responses," Mr. Patrickson said.

He said: "Overall, 1982 was an exceptional year for the Work in Canada." In addition to the Plain Truth increase, he cited a 33.8 percent increase in Church literature distribution, a 13.9 percent increase in mail income and a 79 percent increase in mail received over 1981.

 the United States would cost him about an hour's wages.

"But he is a fine loyal member, and it was a privilege to meet him and his family!" Mr. Halford said.

Jan. 4, Mr. Halford visited Auschwitz, a Nazi concentration camp in World War II. "That camp revealed something about the nature of rule Hitler had planned for the world after he conquered it," he said.

"Auschwitz was not the first concentration camp I've visited, but it was by far the most depressing," he continued.

"Somebody sat down and carefully planned an institution designed solely to exterminate human life. To walk inside the gas chambers and view the scratch marks made as prisoners tried to claw their way out from death — the experience is beyond words.

"The institution was built to last. It's obvious Hitler planned to use it long after the war was over."

Mr. Halford and Mr. Kieffer planned to visit the East German members, but "were held up at the East German-Polish border for more than three hours and could only get a transit visa to West Berlin," he said.

Travel plans to Thailand did not leave him enough time to reenter East Germany, so Mr. Halford flew to Bangkok, Thailand, Jan. 5 from Copenhagen, Denmark.

"As approved by Mr. Armstrong, we are planning to assist in teaching English at Chiang Rai Teachers' College in northern Thailand," Mr.

Halford said.

With Steve Pelfry, manager of the now-completed Ambassador College Educational Project in Thailand (ACEPT), Mr. Halford visited the Chiang Rai campus and met with administrative officials.

"They are very eager to have us," he said. "They associate Herbert W. Armstrong with good things for Thailand, based on Mr. Armstrong's and Ambassador College's involvement with that nation."

After a stopover in Hong Kong, Mr. Halford returned to Pasadena Jan. 8.

"An itinerary through Haiti, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Thailand is not typical tourist route," Mr. Halford said. "But it is one that graphically demonstrates the need for the reinstatement of God's government over all the earth."

Spanish director points to growth despite economic, political woes

By Tom Delamater

PASADENA — In 1982 inflation skyrocketed to more than 50 percent in Argentina, Mexico and Peru, causing massive devaluation of currency in those countries. Rebel groups terrorized the people of Guatemala and El Salvador throughout the year, and a government strengthened its grip in Nicaragua.

Tom Delamater is the managing editor of the Pasadena Ambassador Portfolio.

In the midst of such rising turmoil God's Work in Spanish-speaking areas experienced unprecedented growth in 1982, according to evangelist Leon Walker, regional director.

"In terms of growth 1982 has been our best year ever," says Mr. Walker. "No doubt about it." And in spite of the social conditions in those countries Mr. Walker feels that with God's blessing 1983 will be another year of growth for the Work there.

Mr. Walker was named regional director of the Work in Spanish-speaking areas by Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong in the fall of 1979, but his involvement with Spanish came early in his college career.

He enrolled in Pasadena Ambassador College in 1955 and began working in the Spanish Department for the late Benjamin Rea, then head of the Work in Spanish-speaking areas. In his senior year Mr. Walker began teaching first- and second-year Spanish classes.

Following his graduation in 1960 and marriage to the former Reba Roper of Wilmot, Ark., he and his bride moved to England, where he joined the faculty of the then newly opened Bricklet Wood campus.

Mr. Walker taught additional classes in theology, speech and international relations, continuing to work with Dr. Rea, who also moved to England.

Mr. Walker recalled an incident that occurred during the early years of the Spanish Department: "A man of English descent who owned a coffee plantation in Colombia somehow came across the Correspondence Course and some literature. He requested that we put him on our mailing list, and soon after we began to notice a marked increase in literature requests from that area.

"We later discovered that he required all workers who signed up to work on his plantation sign up for the Correspondence Course. Of course, our mailing list grew substantially at that time," said Mr. Walker with a laugh. "We later had to explain to the man that that wasn't exactly the thing to do."

During the mid-1960s Mr. Walker became less active in Spanish activities and more involved in the college. In 1972 he was appointed dean of students and served in that responsibility until the Bricklet Wood campus was closed in 1974.

Mr. Walker, first ordained in 1963, was also active in ministerial responsibilities while in England. He pastored a number of churches and was ordained to the rank of pastor in 1967. Among the churches he pastored there were Bristol, Warrington and London.

At the closing of the Bricklet Wood campus the Walkers moved to Big Sandy, where Mr. Walker became head of the Theology Department.

Three years later, however, the Big Sandy campus was also closed, and the Walkers moved back to Pasadena, where Mr. Walker taught theology classes.

He was named acting dean of faculty for the Pasadena campus in 1979 and served in the post until Mr. Armstrong named him regional director in November of that year.

But Mr. Walker's responsibilities with the college didn't end there. In February, 1981, Mr. Walker was named by Mr. Armstrong to serve as deputy chancellor at the Big Sandy campus, which was to reopen as a junior college that August and later that month was ordained an evangelist. Mr. Walker spent one year as deputy chancellor.

At the conclusion of the school year Mr. Walker was transferred back to Pasadena to work exclusively with the Spanish Department. Evangelist Leslie L. McCullough was appointed as the Big Sandy deputy chancellor by Mr. Armstrong.

Mr. Walker feels that his experience in the Spanish Department, plus the experience of teaching and pastoring churches in England, prepared him well for his duties as regional director.

"Through my visiting and contacts [in England] I saw how the people there lived," he said. "When I came to the Spanish Department I was able to be sensitive to the people and their situation."

Mr. Walker said that it took him and his staff a while to learn the customs and conditions the people in Central and South America live under. He realized they were dealing with Third World countries, where many of the people live in poverty.

"I don't feel that an individual can truly and deeply understand how people outside the United States live until he experiences it himself," he said. Mr. Walker frequently travels to Central and South America to maintain personal contact with the ministers and brethren there.

"The wages just don't rise as fast as the prices," he said, "and the members really suffer." He pointed out that this affects their ability to make contributions to the Work.

In El Salvador and Guatemala terrorism is still widespread, but Mr. Walker feels the overall situation for the brethren has improved. "It is certainly safer today, and our members are less preoccupied and disturbed by the situation," he said.

It is difficult for brethren scattered across the countryside in El Salvador and Guatemala to attend services, Mr. Walker said, because most don't have cars or access to public transportation. Even if they did, however, it would probably be too dangerous to travel any great distances.

In spite of these adverse circumstances God's Work in Spanish-speaking areas continues to grow. Circulation for La Pura Verdad (Spanish version of The Plain Truth) nearly doubled in 1982, from 100,000 copies to nearly 200,000 copies monthly.

HUSBAND-AND-WIFE TEAM — Evangelist Leon Walker and his wife Reba have served in the Spanish Department since 1979.

Of that number, 11,000 copies are now going each month into Spain and Portugal, also reflecting a 100 percent increase in circulation.

Mr. Walker and his Pasadena-based staff of 24 full- and part-time workers have had little opportunity to reach Spain itself.

"Our biggest problem is that we have no minister there," said Mr. Walker.

However, he said that the department is "trying to provide growth in Spain. We've been increasing it dramatically over the last few years."

Mr. Walker said that the dominant influence of the Catholic Church in Spain isn't really a major problem for the Work's efforts there.

"Where you have more affluence

[as in Spain], people don't tend to take the same interest in a Work of this type," he said, explaining that oppression would be more likely in the unstable Central American countries.

He is also looking forward to continued growth this year. "We hope and pray that the income of the Work will increase over the next year," he said.

Mr. Walker said: "I have grown really attached to the Spanish-speaking ministers and brethren in the past three years. My wife and I have visited all of the major congregations throughout Mexico, Central and South America. We loved being able to do it and have rejoiced in seeing the growth within that area of God's worldwide Work."

Member's clients include Colombian president

Translator interprets her life

By George Hague and Jeff Zhorne

PASADENA — "I'm sort of a nonofficial member of the Spanish Department," said Margot Fischer, member of the Bogota, Colombia, congregation and translator for the Work's Spanish publications.

"She is a top-notch translator with an excellent grasp of both Spanish and English, including style and editorial ability," said evangelist Leon Walker, regional director of the Work in Spanish-speaking areas.

Mrs. Fischer was in Pasadena to translate the Jan. 10 to 20 Ministerial Refreshing Program for the Spanish-speaking ministers.

Most of her work, however, with the Spanish Department is done by mail, returning translated manuscripts to Pasadena for publication.

According to Mrs. Fischer, work as a translator is usually done on a free-lance basis in Colombia.

In addition to her responsibilities with the Spanish Department, she translates and interprets for governmental and international organizations. She interpreted for Colombian President Belisario Betancur when U.S. President Ronald Reagan visited Colombia Dec. 3.

"I was nervous about the whole thing," said Mrs. Fischer. In an effort not to make any diplomatic faux pas for the presidents, "I had to think and speak correctly and precisely," she said.

She has also provided simultaneous interpretations at conferences of the Organization of American States, the Food and Agricultural Organization, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) and the Pan American Health Organization.

Mrs. Fischer began translating for the Church in 1972. Her father, a writer, was originally asked to translate the material.

She said: "I was looking through his papers, and I found a letter that seemed pretty interesting. It asked my father if he would like to translate for The Plain Truth. Since he was too busy, he told me to answer and tell them that I would do it. That's how I started with the Church."

Mrs. Fischer added: "It was very intriguing. The Correspondence Course and the booklet on the Sabbath had the biggest impact on me."

She explained that as she translated the literature, she told her family about it. Eventually other members of her family also became interested.

Pablo Gonzalez, now pastor of the San Juan, Puerto Rico, congregation, was the first minister to visit her family. "We had him over for dinner," she said. "We would sit around the table and ask him questions trying to pin him to the wall."

After translating for the Work for almost three years, Mrs. Fischer was baptized in 1975. Her sister Beatriz Noguera, a part-time translator for the Church, was baptized the same year.

"To be an interpreter the first thing you need to be is bilingual. That's the basis. I was taught both English and Spanish quite carefully by my father. Since he was an editor he was a stickler for language." Her father was once the associate editor of Selecciones del Reader's Digest, the Spanish Reader's Digest.

"But I wanted to be a pianist," Mrs. Fischer continued. "I told myself at age 18, if I couldn't be a top-notch pianist in Paris, then I wouldn't play another note."

A mark of excellence? "No, I think probably a mark of arrogance," she said. "Now I regret saying that. But I play the piano a little now — stumbling my way through various exercises and piano pieces."

She continued: "I went to Colombia with my father in 1963 after graduating from high school in New York. I studied other languages at Universidad Javeriana in Bogota." Mrs. Fischer is fluent in English, Spanish and French.

Although Mrs. Fischer studied languages at school, her father had the largest impact on her training. She said, "What I really did was study translating under my father."

Mrs. Fischer was the last of a breed of interpreters who learned not at college but "the old way" — working to perfect linguistics.

"When I was translating for the American Embassy, they asked me if I wanted to interpret," she recalled. "Well," she said, "I don't know if I can. So they opened a book written in Spanish and asked me to read it in English and vice versa. They thought I did it well, so they

Brethren combat 200% inflation as a family team in Argentina

PASADENA — Despite unemployment, inflation, half a decade of terrorism and war between Britain and Argentina, God's Church in Argentina continues to grow and be strengthened, reported Albert Sousa, a preaching elder coordinating Church activities in Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay.

Mr. Sousa, 41, and his wife Elizabeth attended the 13th session of the Ministerial Refreshing Program and participated in administrative meetings conducted by evangelist Leon Walker, regional director of the Work in Spanish-speaking areas.

"The Church is poor there, but doing well," Mr. Sousa said in a Jan. 17 interview with The Worldwide News. "Most live together in the same neighborhood in Bahia Blanca and Ezezia [the two cities in Argentina where there are congregations], and they work together as a team to survive."

Most of the 175 brethren attending the two congregations in Argentina did not learn about the Church in what could be considered "the typical way," Mr. Sousa said.

The majority, he said, came from a Sabbath-keeping Sardis-era church called the Israelitish Church of the New Covenant.

"In Argentina and Uruguay [where another 35 brethren attend services when a minister visits], we had a Sardis and a Pentecostal minister being reading Church literature and preaching the truth from the booklets to the congregations."

"Eventually, under separate instances, the ministers came into the Worldwide Church of God. They told their congregations not to follow them unless they studied the literature and accepted it, but most eventually became members of the Worldwide Church of God," Mr. Sousa said.

Ministers Robert Flores and Luis E. Chavez counseled with each person before he became part of the Church, he added. Mr. Chavez pastors the Bahia Blanca church.

Coping with inflation

Brethren living in Argentina try to conquer inflation with teamwork. "The husband, wife and children of each family work together as a team," he said.

"Most Church brethren live near each other, so they buy large quantities of basic foodstuffs and other basic items to cut costs," Mr. Sousa continued.

"But because of their economic state and the terrible inflation, most have to cut down on a lot of food consumption."

"The big meal of the week comes at noon on the Sabbath. The evening meals during the week usually consist of very little, perhaps some soup."

"The Argentinean brethren faced a 400 percent increase in food and other prices during 1982 and at times a rate of inflation near 200 percent. They basically have very little money — just enough to survive," Mr. Sousa said.

Doors closed

"We are building the Work there mostly through the [Plain Truth] cardholder program," he continued.

"Most of the media doors are simply closed in Argentina. Catholicism is the official state religion, with, ironically, the Worldwide Church of God listed as a 'dissident' religion with the Department of Non-Catholic and Dissident Religions.

"Freedom of religion is part of the law, but it actually works out that other religions are merely tolerated."

"We have had some very successful newspaper ads for La Pura Verdad [Spanish Plain Truth]. One in El Clarin, the newspaper from Argentina's capital city [Buenos Aires], brought over 6,500 subscriptions," he said.

"Because of the war with the British and the terrorism during the '70s, people are a little suspicious of anything new like God's truth," Mr. Sousa said.

"But response is picking up — people are becoming very interested in the Church, but are still very careful because of past political problems."

Despite economic problems, "God is blessing the Work," he said. "Our brethren may be suffering, but they're not complainers. They are faithful and strong."

Guatemalan member 'presumed dead'

Members deal with terrorism

PASADENA — "The situation has improved considerably in El Salvador and Guatemala," said Herbert Cisneros in a Worldwide News interview Jan. 18.

Don Walls, regional editor of La Pura Verdad (Spanish Plain Truth), translated Herbert Cisneros' comments for The Worldwide News.

"The running gun battles in the streets are very rare now. Most guerrilla activity in the larger cities is limited to isolated terrorist bombings. The larger battles take place in the remote areas."

Mr. Cisneros, 39, here for the Ministerial Refreshing Program, spoke of conditions faced by brethren living in El Salvador and Guatemala, two strife-torn Central American countries where he pastors churches.

Brethren living in those countries daily face prospects of injury, death and robbery from rampant terrorism. According to Mr. Cisneros, one member in Guatemala, Jose Luis Merida De la Rosa, is presumed dead.

"He lived in a village in rural Guatemala, where guerrilla activity is most intense," Mr. Cisneros said. "Plain Truths, literature and letters I have sent him have been returned... He has not attended any Holy Day services for over a year, which is unusual, because he was a very strong person spiritually."

The danger from outbreaks of gun battles prevents Mr. Cisneros from visiting the area Mr. De la Rosa lived, to confirm his death.

"I went to a government agency and found that the village where he lived no longer exists. I hope that he has escaped somehow or that he is alive in captivity, but the odds are against it," Mr. Cisneros said.

"The rural areas are the most dangerous," he continued. "The guerrillas come into a village and proclaim it 'liberated,' that is, now part of their territory. The army of the government hears of the guerrilla activity and comes in to chase them out."

"Often, the village is destroyed in the battle. The army can't tell the difference between the guerrillas and the people of the village, so who knows who gets killed?"

Members living in the rural areas have been advised to move to the larger cities, where danger is not so great.

"Those living in villages are pressured by the army to collaborate and bear arms. If they do, they immediately become guerrilla targets. If they don't, they are considered traitors by the army and subject to arrest or worse," Mr. Cisneros said.

Some brethren have been warned that they will be expected to collaborate with the army and bear arms, but so far none has had to face a crucial showdown over this matter.

"A number have moved to the city and are now prospering. But I'm afraid that the time of confrontation is coming," he said.

Mr. Cisneros has advised the brethren to offer to cooperate on nonmilitary items such as medical help if they are confronted, or to move to urban areas if there is no alternative.

"God must intervene nearly daily to spare our brethren there," he said. "There is a common saying among the El Salvadoran brethren: They say that if it is true that God assigns an angel to all brethren, then the angels in El Salvador have the hardest jobs."

Government efforts to stabilize the area are improving the situation, but peace is still far off, he noted. He mentioned several brethren for stress-related ailments two years ago, "but believe it or not, you can sort of get used to all the warfare."

Mr. Cisneros noted one time when God intervened. "It was the Passover night of 1980. A couple of days earlier the archbishop of El Salvador was assassinated and the asked me to do an interpreting job.

"I liked interpreting. It kind of came naturally, so I joined a professional group of interpreters in Colombia. That was the only way to learn. We didn't go to college. We just developed our skills together."

Mrs. Fischer explained that translating is more than just substituting a Spanish word for an English word. Often a specific meaning must be conveyed, rather than individual words.

"A translator must be aware of differences of cultures," she pointed out. "For instance, one booklet I translated mentioned that some women go to bars or cafes by themselves. In Colombia women would never think of such a thing. So a translator has to be aware of certain customs."

Mr. Walker said: "She has two things going for her. Any professional translator can translate from one language to another. She is a professional, but she is also a Church member. Sometimes when we used nonmember translators, they had difficulty because they couldn't understand the material. Since she is a Church member, she can do a far more effective job."

Mrs. Fischer is married with two children. Her husband is a psychiatrist in Colombia.

Mrs. Fischer left for Colombia the evening of Jan. 22, two days after the Refreshing Program ended. "I've enjoyed every minute of it, and I hope it is not my last."

Blind couple refuse to stumble in face of daily unseen obstacles

The following article appeared in the July 25, 1982, Lompoc, Calif., Record. It is excerpted by permission. Jack and Cindy Lenk are members of the San Luis Obispo, Calif., church. They have two daughters, one of whom is blind.

By Russ Spencer

LOMPOC, Calif. — For most people, being blind may seem like an almost insurmountable obstacle to leading a normal life.

But to Lompoc residents Jack and Cindy Lenk, who do cooking, cleaning, shopping and virtually everything else for themselves, it seems hardly an inconvenience.

Of course, there are some drawbacks.

Like . . . the times their daughters [Linda and Jackie] try to get away with something because they know Jack and Cindy can't see them.

"I can tell when they're doing something wrong, though," said Cindy. "Girls get sneaky and quiet when they're doing something they shouldn't be."

Or wearing clothes that their sighted daughter Jackie has picked out for them.

"Jackie's color combinations get kinda wild," Jack said.

Or trying to find groceries after Jackie has sorted through them.

She likes to put our groceries away," Cindy said, "but I don't let her, because she puts them in different and I can't find them."

Drawbacks aside, Jack and Cindy are amazingly self-sufficient. Their independence is now so complete that Cindy said the only thing they cannot do for themselves is drive a car.

And next to their independence, their most striking quality is a warm sense of humor, which seemed to come naturally last week as they talked of their life together, and their way of life as a blind couple.

They met when Jack was 7 years old and Cindy was 6 and they were both miles from home at the Missouri School for the Blind in St. Louis.

"In the boarding school, you really got to know each other," Jack said, "You didn't always get the chance to put your best foot forward . . . and not everybody has two good feet."

They both spent nine months out of every year from kindergarten through high school at the boarding school. For Cindy, it was 300 miles from home.

"I felt a lot of resentment about that," Cindy said, but agreed with Jack that the school was beneficial for both of them from an educational standpoint.

After Cindy's graduation, the couple married and moved to various places until settling in Pasadena [Calif.], where Jack earned his associate of arts degree at Pasadena City College and worked for the Social Security Department.

On the advice of church friends, they moved to Lompoc a year ago and have found it to be "the best area we've ever lived in."

"The people are friendly and helpful" and Lompoc is "not so big that you're lost in a crowd of people," Cindy said.

Sitting in twin rockers in their Lupine Street home, they said they work as a team, doing all their own shopping, cleaning and other house chores.

They walk to and from stores, and have memorized the street patterns and names well enough to be able to walk from their home to the post office.

They don't walk alone, however. Always accompanying them are their guide dogs Ilka and Sammy, who stop for curbs, doors and other obstructions.

Like everyone else, they stop for red lights and go on green lights, but instead of looking at the colors, they listen to traffic patterns to tell them when to walk.

Reaching down to pet his dog Sammy, Jack said he has never been hit by a car, but jokingly added he has "lost the tip of a cane a couple times."

Jack reads the family mail on his "Octacon," a device which when run over any print sends impulses from a movable reader in Jack's right hand to a pickup which sends vibrations in the shape of each letter to Jack's left hand.

Jack pays all of the family bills, using raised-line checks provided by his bank.

They have a clock, but instead of showing the time with hands or numbers, it uses a prerecorded voice to give the time out loud whenever a button is pushed.

They have a typewriter which spits out notes written not in standard letters, but in braille.

To buy food, they walk or take the city transit to the store, and have clerks help them pick out food.

"I've never lost the kids in a store," Cindy said, "But maybe that's because we're more careful."

"Yeah, we're working on it, though," Jack slipped in, grinning and leaning back in his rocker.

The family even watches — or rather, listens to — the television. "We still say we watch it," Cindy said with a smile.

And the one thing they do unaided which takes most of their time is the raising of their two children, Linda and Jackie.

Linda, 8, is in and out of the house continually, talking to her parents, playing with the dogs or showing off her latest bump or bruise — seemingly unhampered by her blindness.

She rollerskates down the sidewalk in front of the Lenk home, yelling, "Look how fast I can go!"

And one of her favorite pastimes is climbing trees.

"She doesn't stop," Jack said, "not even for walls."

Jackie, 10, is sighted and a quiet contrast to her sister. While Linda screams down the sidewalk, Jackie quietly tends to the tomatoes growing in the front yard.

"If Jackie gets the slightest little bump or sore, she's on her last breath," Cindy said, "whereas Linda might just say, 'Ow.'"

Cindy said she has not "sheltered" Linda too much. "I go overboard the other way sometimes, to make sure she gets to do everything."

And, undoubtedly following the example of her parents, Linda does seem to do everything — everything which the absence of sight would seem to prohibit, but which the Lenk family has found a way to accomplish.

PLAIN TRUTH CIRCULATION WORLDWIDE

PASADENA — Is The Plain Truth truly an international magazine? Look at the following list and see for yourself.

First the bad news. A statistical analysis of the worldwide mailing list shows there are no Plain Truth subscribers in Cape Verde, Chad, Kampuchea, Laos, Mongolia, Tibet and such island groups as Tokelau, Madeira, Pitcairn, Ocean and Ascension.

Now the good news: 3,324,723 copies of The Plain Truth are mailed to the areas listed below. Another 2,002,000 are placed on the newsstands.

This list represents countries and territories with resident Plain Truth subscribers at the end of 1982. Some dependencies are listed separately. Newsstand copies are not included.

120 ski, skate, toboggan in Austrian winter camp

By Ingrid Svensson
RADFELD, Austria — At the foot of the Bavarian Alps in the Tirol region of western Austria lies the village of Radfeld, halfway between Kufstein and Innsbruck, site of the 1976 Winter Olympics.

Ingrid Svensson is a member in Haegersten, Sweden.

Here 120 youths, singles, families, ministers and wives converged Dec. 22 for a 10-day winter camp of cross-country and downhill skiing, tobogganing and ice-skating.

Countries represented at the camp were West Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, France, Norway, Sweden, Great Britain, the United States and Canada.

The group slept and dined at the Jugendheim Sonnenhof, a lodge in Radfeld.

After breakfast Dec. 23, participants loaded up with sandwiches, sweet cakes and fruit for lunch and set out for either cross-country skiing or ice-skating.

Although the ground held little snow for the first few days, by Dec. 28 newly fallen snow provided skiers with an ideal skiing surface.

Dec. 24 many tried tobogganing, under the instruction of an Austrian Church member. Following a two-hour hike to Alpbach village, tobogganers maneuvered sledges along a two-minute downhill run.

Sabbath services the next day were conducted in the Sonnenhof by John Halford, a pastor-rank minister from Pasadena. Mr. Halford told the youths that God's way offered eternal life while the best Satan can do is to offer another few years or so on earth.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES

Mark Ellis gave his last sermon as pastor of the BELFAST, Northern Ireland, church Dec. 18 before leaving to serve in the Sydney, Australia, South church. After the Sabbath the members had a barn dance to show their appreciation for the Ellis family's efforts for the past 5½ years. May Adair presented a check token to the Ellises on behalf of the church. Spokesman Club President William Houston presented a plaque on behalf of the club. A golden pen was given by Will Linton on behalf of the YOU. The members also took the opportunity to welcome the new pastor, John Jewell, and his family. Godfrey Herst.

Frank Schnee, regional director of the Work in German-speaking areas, was guest speaker at the BRUSSELS, Belgium, church services Dec. 11. He returned to Germany the same day, as he had to leave for Czechoslovakia the following day. Jean J. Carion.

A combination chili dinner-costume party-variety show for the BUFFALO, N.Y., brethren took place Dec. 11. Following sundown after services the members changed into their various costumes. Chili was served along with fruit, crackers, pies, popcorn and drinks. After dinner the costume parades began in four groups: children, YOU teens, adults and family theme. Steve and Kathleen Kurrik won the best couple award, while the Fishburn-Lasch family took the best family theme award.

The variety show featured Ivan Raycoff on piano, Peter Nomm with a trumpet solo and pianist Dennis Rey. Vocalists included Cindy Schmitt, Jim Bondgren and Henry Marek, a barbershop quartet and the Buffalo chorale. Dance skits were performed by the Ed Kowalczyk family, Bert and Phil Oakley and Rick and Cindy Schmitt with Ron and Cheryl Wlozyga. A high point of the show was the unveiling of the newly formed church band under the direction of Dennis Hussak. The show's finale featured the Sucharski family. Gail Ann Biagalski and Val Matuzkiewicz.

The COLUMBUS, Ga., church had its first family follies Dec. 11. The evening included a chili supper and a fun show featuring performances by the young and not as young. Pastor Otto Lochner had instructed that the emphasis should be on fun, and the consensus of the audience was that his instructions were followed. Bob Spurlin.

Combined services of the COOKEVILLE and MURFREESBORO, Tenn., churches Dec. 18 were followed by a children's musical play entitled Around the World. The audience was led on a voyage to countries where the Church has offices or Feasts its. Each country was represented by folk dances or songs, all done in native costumes. The featured soloists were Darlene Jared and Johnny Broyles. The play was arranged and directed by Barbara Tinkham and Debbie McNeely. Sally Walker.

The Plain Truth waiting room program was launched in the CORPUS CHRISTI and VICTORIA, Tex., church areas Dec. 5. Fifty-seven members volunteered their time to call various businesses in their areas. Others volunteered to maintain Plain Truth cardholders. After the two-hour training and practice session conducted by pastor Dennis Van Deventer and his assistant David Gray, the brethren enjoyed a potluck lunch. A series of meetings was conducted throughout the afternoon for the purpose of training songleaders and instructing sermonic men. The final meeting served to update the communications network. Dennis Van Deventer.

Dec. 11 was the date of the DICKINSON, N.D., church's nationality night. Brethren dressed in costumes representing their respective national origins, and the potluck consisted of food representing nations around the world. A variety show, with Tim Love as master of ceremonies, topped off the evening's activities. Brethren performed skits, dances and songs from native lands. High points included a Ukrainian violin solo by Sam Garvlov and a piano selection by pastor Dan Creed. Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Prociw organized the evening's social. Timothy G. Love.

Women of the DULUTH, Minn., church enjoyed a luncheon and fashion show Dec. 5. Several of the girls in the church served lunch while the women watched the show, which stressed how to buy wisely and make the most of your wardrobe. Handmade crafts were given away as door prizes. The women were invited to participate in a clothing exchange set up at the rear of the room. Carol J. Morken.

Members of the EVANSVILLE, Ind., church attended a Western dance and chili supper the evening of Dec. 18. Under the direction of Sandra Pentress, YOU members served the meal. Nancy Miller made a 40-pound cake in the shape of and decorated as a covered wagon, which was served with punch and coffee for dessert. Country and western music, prerecorded by blind member Tom Bozikis, was played and danced to throughout the evening. Minister David Pentress and Bob Daniels were masters of ceremonies for a half hour of entertainment that featured vocalist Lisa Cantrell, a duet by Charles and Brenda Eades and a solo by blind member Rhonda Bozikis. In keeping with the theme many brethren appeared in Western style clothing. Henrietta Kissel directed the decorations committee. Dorothy Webb.

Pastor Earl Roemer made his monthly visit to the FAIRBANKS, Alaska, church Dec. 18. The 15 adults and 15 children met for morning services at the insulated energy-efficient building at the fairgrounds. Afterward the group drove to the home of Jerry Crow for a sandwich lunch organized by Ralph Dow and a Bible study. Kristina Ahlmaes ended the get-together by showing slides and movies from her expedition to Antarctica. Kristina Ahlmaes.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., brethren took part in the third of a series of square dances Dec. 18. The square dance lessons began Nov. 20 at a YOU activity at the country home of Jim Northup. The evening also included a Bible study conducted by YOU assistant Charles May, a barbecue chicken dinner and the showing of two movies. Pastor John Elliott decided to begin the square dance lessons in the Fort Smith, Ark., church, which he also pastors, so Dec. 25 some of the Fayetteville brethren journeyed south to help kick off the square dancing in Fort Smith. Dora Brach.

Members of the FLINT, Mich., church sponsored their second annual winter ball Dec. 11. Brethren enjoyed a catered buffet dinner and danced to the Jim Stanley Trio, featuring music from the '50s and '60s. The entertainment portion of the evening featured a country and western theme, including a square dance by the Flint Square Dancers. Comical commercials added spice to the program. Kathleen Renner and Joann Whitehead.

A potluck dinner and a carnival followed the Dec. 18 services of the GREAT FALLS, Mont., church. Games and activities included bobbing for apples, a cakewalk, dart throw, basketball toss, fish pond and a bingo game for the adults. Micki Lalum and Bonnie Wolverson dressed up as clowns and handed out balloons to the children. Popcorn, hot apple cider and homemade ice cream were served during the evening. Linda Stamp.

Bristol Oaks Country Club was the setting of the KENOSHA, Wis., church's fifth anniversary social Dec. 12. The celebration began in the afternoon as the brethren watched the three cheerleading squads demonstrate one of their cheers. An hour of entertainment included a flute solo, poetry reading, the men's choir and a skit. After hors d'oeuvres were served the dance began. When the floor was filled with dancers, minister Mike Greider began a broom dance in which the males took turns dancing with a broom in exchange for their partners. Dorothy Kent made the anniversary cake. Conni McClure.

The first social of the winter season for the KINGSTON, Ont., brethren took place Dec. 4 with a potluck supper and the Walt Disney film The Apple Dumpling Gang Rides Again. Ramona Juozopaitis. LAFAYETTE, La., members had a semi-annual garage sale Dec. 12 as a fund raiser to benefit the church. Glenda Crawford.

The evening of Dec. 19 the LOS ANGELES, Calif., church had a family fun night. The decorations, food and dress reflected the international theme of the evening. Many wore costumes depicting their national heritage, and a potluck specialized in dishes from around the world. The high point of the social was a fashion show by the YOU. The models, who made most of their outfits, with some help from their parents, were Aaron Douglas, Frank and Stephen Burks, Alward and Aljoshua Johnson, Deana Henderson, Derrick Brown, Terr Waters, Mark and Karen Cato, Shetara

Oliver, Robelyn Jabel, Nathan Kirksey and Nicole Smith. The evening ended with dancing to the music of the church band. Coordinators of the event were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Geoff Berg and Mr. and Mrs. Alward Johnson. Masters of ceremonies were Carl Johnson and Amy Smith. Pastor Abner Washington complimented everyone on a job well done. Geoffrey S. Berg, Deana Henderson and Alward Johnson.

MACOMB, Ill., brethren enjoyed a nostalgia dance Dec. 18. The featured dance from the turn of the century was the waltz, demonstrated by Larry and Elaine Ford. Barry and Carolyn Brown introduced the Charleston from the '20s, and the Stroll was the dance of the '50s, performed by Ron Wroblewski and Linda Barker. After each demonstration the brethren were invited to the dance floor to learn the dances.

The entertainment segment included a soft-shoe tap dance by Gina Patrick, a piano solo by John Druien, a baton twirling routine by Becca Still, the barbershop quartet The Unaccounted Four (Judy Bush, Herb Corse, Joe Kreiter, Lowell Timberlake) and a version of the Mouseteaters. The children were entertained with cartoons, games and activity dances. Betty Druien.

The first services of the MADISON, Wis., church were conducted Dec. 4 as 137 people were present to initiate the beginning of the church. An official registry of those present was made to help remember the original members. Pastor Greg Johnson spoke on how the growth in God's Church glorifies God. Greg Johnson.

Dec. 18 was movie night for the MELBOURNE, Fla., church, with cartoons and the movie Herbie Rides Again. It was also the deadline for a cheese sale fund-raising project that netted $472. A combined picnic for the Melbourne and Port Pierce, Fla., churches took place Dec. 26 at Wabasso, Fla., with activities for every age. Drop ins, where members bring their own refreshments and games to a member's home for an evening of fellowship after the Sabbath, take place each month. Robert G. Lehman.

Brethren of the MERIDEN, Conn., church gathered after services Dec. 18 for a family social. Activities included a potluck supper, pie baking contest and cabinet acts. Karen George.

The MONTVALE, N.J., church had a penny-rail social Dec. 18. Members donated their saved pennies, which were displayed in jars for all to guess the total number. Winner of the $10 first prize was Mary Gebhardt for her guess of 56,500 (the actual number was 56,116). Second place winner of the $5 prize was Tillie Illenye. Besides a potluck the evening included a clothing and miscellaneous items boutique exchange. Mike Bedford.

The annual winter dance of the ORLANDO, Fla., church Dec. 18 featured band music for dancing and plenty of refreshments. Much of the expense for the dance was provided for by a rummage sale Dec. 12 organized by Gordon Schmidt that raised $750. Edward Strickland.

Tito Mina and Ruben Apelo played hosts to the SANTIAGO, Philippines, brethren who remained in Cebu after the Sabbath services and Bible study Nov. 27 so they could attend the church's fun night. Pastor Felipe Casing started a sing-along by singing his family piece "Everlasting," which his children joined in. Twenty-five YES children led by Oscar Mina enjoyed parlor games and a talent show. Ruela Martin got the highest score in a Bible quiz. The following morning Mr. and Mrs. Cipriano Galima invited the brethren to a picnic beside their fish pond. The YES children learned how to catch fish with a net, cook them and how to eat them carefully to avoid the fish bones. Perfecto L. Doljan.

The three deacons serving in the SPRINGFIELD, Mass., and ALBANY, N.Y., churches were honored Dec. 4 by their brethren and pastor Lyle Welty. Donald Cole, David Lengieza and Michael Nelson, who were ordained the same day in 1975, were presented with commemorative plaques to honor their first seven years of service. David J. Myers.

The SYDNEY, Australia, SOUTH church played host to the second combined district weekend Dec. 10 through 12. Brethren assembled Friday evening to hear a Bible study by visiting evangelist Gerald Waterhouse, who also gave the sermon Sabbath afternoon. In the evening an audiovisual presentation on the 26 years of God's Work in Australia was screened. Afterward a crew set up and decorated the hall for an international sock hop, where participants wore socks depicting the nation from which they originated. Brethren provided international dishes for refreshments. The children were treated to movies and cartoons. Prizes were awarded for the best pair of socks and the most creative food dish.

The next day the brethren enjoyed a fun day at the Bennett Park sports field. A variety of rides, swings and fun stalls were available. Teenagers played sporting games, and the not-so-energetic relaxed in the sun and socialized.

Dec. 19 the church conducted a road-side sale as a fund-raising venture for the SEP and future church activities. Merchandise was arrayed across the property of Ron Osborne, and passersby were enticed by well-placed signs to purchase honey, homemade jams and cakes, hand-crafted items and potted plants, as well as an assortment of secondhand goods such as books, toys, kitchenware and furniture. Particular commendations went to salesladies Linda Haanstra and Cathy Adamson. At the end of the day members relaxed and enjoyed a barbecue. Barry Hatfield and Andrew Marcaros.

WAUSAU, Wis., members bid farewell to pastor Dave Fiedler and his family Dec. 11. Mr. Fiedler will pastor the Appleton, Wis., congregation and the new Green Bay, Wis., church. Associate pastor Norman Strayer will now pastor the Wausau and Wisconsin Dells, Wis., churches. A potluck supper was served after services, and a program was presented in honor of the Fiedlers. Master of ceremonies was Don Mathie. Poems were written and presented by Jerry Wendt, Jerry Stevens, Chris Westberg and Patti Zimmerman. The Fiedlers were presented with a food processor from the Women's and Spokesman clubs, a copper teakettle from the YOU and a food dehydrator and a set of Bible encyclopedia from the church. Louise Doescher.

More than 300 YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, and MERCER, Pa., brethren attended a movie social Dec. 25 and viewed the film Chariots of Fire. Refreshments were provided. Bill White.

CHECKLIST FOR CHURCH NEWS WRITERS

Since "Local Church News" is such a great way for you to let others know what's happening in your area, here are a few helpful suggestions in telling your story. You can use this as a checklist whenever you are the reporter for a big happening in your area.

1. Include your complete name, address and phone number on the article itself (not just on the envelope or accompanying letter).
2. Include date and location of the event in the article. Reports lacking the date of the event cannot be run.
3. Give complete, accurately spelled names of all people mentioned. Include first and last names.
4. Label pictures. Identify people in the photo, tell what's happening and give the photographer's name.
5. Write in the third person; use he, she, they, not we or I.
6. Type article or print legibly. Always double-space.
7. Reports must be postmarked no later than 14 days after the event takes place.
8. Be creative, but brief! Tell the story in 250 words or less.
9. Ask a minister to sign your article.

people were gathered that Sunday [March 30] for the funeral mass.
"About 150,000 people were gathered in a park in the center of the city. Just as the casket was being taken into the church, bombs started going off in the perimeter of the park.

"As the throngs would run into one area, another bomb would go off. Then suddenly, guerrillas appeared and started firing into the crowd. It is said, however, that more died from being trampled than from being shot or blown up."

On that day, near anarchy prevailed, he said. Mr. Cisneros wanted to cancel Passover services, but it was impossible for him to contact the brethren on such short notice. So he decided to go to the hall and see if anybody showed up.

A considerable personal risk, 42 brethren came.

Immediately after sunset, Mr. Cisneros began the service, concluding as quickly as possible. Now the problem was to get everyone home safely, no easy task. "Because of the violence, no buses or taxis were running. It was far too dangerous to walk anywhere.

"We had a few members with cars, so we filled them as full as possible and sent them off.

"As we were wondering what to do with the rest of the brethren, a bus pulled up unexpectedly. This was amazing, considering that no regular buses were running.

"Now all we had left were two ladies and my wife and me. Again, in what appears to be a miracle, a taxi came up. This was incredible.

"We got in, and I gave the taxi driver careful instructions to avoid the central part of the city where the violence had been centered earlier that day.

"As it turned out, he ignored my instructions and drove through the central city at terrible risk.

"Yet, God protected His brethren. All were able to attend the Passover service and return home without incident."

Mr. Cisneros lives in San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador, with his wife and their four children.

Japan

he considered attempts to rewrite history textbooks in Japan covering the nation's role in World War II "a bad omen."

(He was referring to the textbook controversy that erupted last summer and disturbed Japan's neighbors. One suggested revision would have the Japanese Imperial army "advancing into" China instead of "invading," as in earlier texts. The Japanese have promised to take another look at proposed changes.)

Mr. Romulo also termed "very dangerous" reports that some Japanese want to amend their constitution to delete the clause banning the use of war as an instrument of national policy. "The handwriting is on the wall for us to read," said Mr. Romulo.

The Philippine diplomat said he conveyed his reservations concerning Japan to U.S. President Ronald Reagan in Washington and that the American leader "said he understood our fears but then said nothing further on the subject."

Revelations of grisly Japanese disease and human endurance experiments with Chinese prisoners of war during Japan's occupation of Manchuria in the 1930s have caused Asian nations to hoist yet additional warning signals to Washington.

Proceed with utmost caution, Japan's neighbors seem to be saying. But Washington isn't paying much attention.

Land, sea, air activities comprise three-week camp in Australia

By John Curry

LAKE MOOGERAH, Australia — The second annual Summer Educational Program (SEP) in Australia, took place at Church-owned property at Lake Moogerah in southeast Queensland, a two-hour drive from the Church's regional office at Burleigh Heads.

John Curry, an assistant to regional director Robert Morton, was a counselor at the Australian Summer Educational Program.

During the Dec. 28 to Jan. 13 camp, 260 teens from all over Australia (including one camper from Malaysia) participated in more than 20 activities that varied from horseback riding, water sports, leather craft and riflery to rockclimbing, archery, lapidary and orienteering.

"This year's camp was a great success," said camp director, David Noller, pastor of the Ipswich, Australia, church. "We tried to pattern it as closely as we could after the example set at the SEP camp at Orr, Minn."

Mr. Noller said several activities were added to the program this year to expose the campers to a wide range of experiences in both sports and arts and crafts. These new activities included photography, basketball, volleyball and dancing.

Also, all the 17- and 18-year-old campers participated in a three-day wilderness hike, appreciating the beauty of the Australian bush, as well as learning various outdoor survival skills.

Kevin Dean, Youth Opportunities United director, traveled from Pasadena to attend the camp as Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong's representative. He gave direction and guidance in implementing Mr. Armstrong's policies for the youths in the Church, said Mr. Noller.

Also assisting at the camp from the Church's headquarters in Pasadena were Mr. Dean's assistant in the YOU Office, Jeb Egbert and his wife Barbara, Ross Jutsum of Music Services and six Ambassador College students.

Robert Morton, Australian regional director, emphasized that the primary purpose of SEP camp is to educate the teens in God's Church in the right way to live.

Campers were instructed in the seven laws of success, the proper attitude to playing sports and were given a forum on music appreciation by Mr. Dean and Mr. Jutsum.

As part of their camp experience they also assisted in the kitchen preparing meals and cleaning dishes and worked on improving the campsite for future years.

The staff for the camp was made up of Church members from all over Australia, most of whom contributed their services and skills during their annual vacations.

Mr. Noller said that the dedication and example set by the staff were most praiseworthy, and without their voluntary help the Church could not afford to have SEP for its teens.

Additional coverage of the Church's Summer Educational Programs (SEP) in Australia, New Zealand and South Africa will appear in the Feb. 7 edition of The Worldwide News.

An invitational YOU volleyball family weekend took place in WEST BEND, Wis., Dec. 4 and 5. Teens and their parents participated in a potluck luncheon and Bible baseball Sabbath morning. The West Bend YOU team placed first. Milwaukee, Wis., was second and Wausau, Wis., was third. A potluck dinner after Sabbath services was followed by a dance and sing-along. The youths and parents spent the night at the church's meeting hall and were served breakfast the next morning by women of the congregation. In the volleyball tournament the Wausau team won first place, with West Bend No. 1 in second and Milwaukee No. 1 in third. Laurie Morstatter.

A trip to Point Pelee National Park Dec. 19 for the WINDSOR, Ont., YES and their families was arranged by Jim Paterson. First stop was a tour of the visitors' center to see samples of the native wildlife in the form of pictures, stories and stuffed animals, and to view two films. The group next took a 1 1/2-mile nature hike, at the end of which ate lunch and drank hot cider under a shelter only a few yards from Lake Erie. Nancy Tait.

UPDATE

PASADENA — Viewer response to the World Tomorrow telecast for 1982 set an all-time record for the United States, according to Richard Rice, director of the Mail Processing Center.

Breaking the previous record set in 1975, 484,526 people responded to the telecast. About 80 percent of the viewers responded by phone and the other 20 percent by mail.

National Football League play-off games reduced response to a possible record-breaking weekend for the World Tomorrow telecast, according to Bill Butler, supervisor for the Wide Area Telephone Response (WATS) area.

Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong's telecast, "Our Economic Woes," which aired Jan. 15 and 16, brought in 10,557 literature requests. This fell 391 responses short of the record of 10,948 telephone responses for a weekend telecast.

"Big nationwide games hit us from different angles," said Mr. Butler. He mentioned that reduced response came from regular telecast viewers watching the games and other reasons.

Mr. Butler added that despite the NFL games, Mr. Armstrong's telecast brought in enough calls to be the third highest weekend response ever. On the telecast Mr. Armstrong offered The United States and Britain in Prophecy and The Plain Truth.

PASADENA — Potential applicants for Pasadena Ambassador College have requested 1,622 applications to date, according to David Albert, acting director of admissions, Jan. 17.

Potential applicants for Big Sandy have requested 650 applications to date, according to the Registrar's Office there.

According to Dr. Albert, about half the applications requested are completed and returned to the college.

In Pasadena an estimated 100 to 120 single students will be accepted for the fall semester, he said. In Big Sandy about 120 to 160 single students will be accepted, according to the Registrar's Office.

Applications for Pasadena and Big Sandy must be returned by March 1.

PASADENA — Annual receipts for donations and tithes for 1982 for the United States were mailed Jan. 20 and 21, according to Richard Rice, director of the Mail Processing Center.

Members in the United States should receive their receipts by the first week in February.

All donations postmarked by Dec. 21, 1982, were credited on the annual receipts for that year. Because year-end delays in mail delivery are common, it may take until the second week of January to receive all such contributions.

Another few days are then required to record them in the computer files. This extra time helps ensure that all individuals' donation records are as complete and accurate as possible before the annual receipts are mailed, Mr. Rice said.

All receipts for international members will be handled by the regional offices of that area, according to Ron Urwiller of the International Mail section of the Mail Processing Center.

Mr. Rice mentioned that the U.S. receipts are for the contributor's personal records. Tax returns can be filed before receiving receipts.

sador students taught English to Laotian refugees.

The students named are senior Michael Limanni and juniors Lex Baer, Chris Crawford, George Hague, Sherri Means, Kim Meyer- dierks, Joel Rissinger, Kathy Sarfert, Becki Suboski and Karen Wallbridge.

The announcement was made by Raymond F. McNair, deputy chancellor, in a student forum.

PASADENA — Another year of exciting activity in God's Work has passed, as evidenced by a review of events of 1982.

The Bonn, West Germany, Office summarized events in God's Work in German-language areas in 1982.

Pastor General Herbert W. Armstrong visited Eltville, West Germany, the day before Pentecost. Only 10 months before he spoke to the German-speaking brethren in Bonn-Bad Godesberg.

The Feast of Tabernacles in Bonndorf, West Germany, and Brno, Czechoslovakia, was attended by more than 950.

Helmut Kohl became chancellor in October, replacing Helmut Schmidt. Quick and positive steps toward expanding media are occurring, such as cable and satellite television as well as private television and radio. This could be a new open door for the Work here.

The Work received an average of 2.87 percent response from flyers in 1982.

For the third year the German Office achieved its goal of adding the same number of subscribers to the Plain Truth subscription list as the entirety of the list at the beginning of the year.

The year 1980 started with 35,000, in 1981, 50,000 and in 1982, 78,000. This year 79,328 were added.

A total of 73,813 requested The Plain Truth in response to advertising in such nationally known newspapers and magazines as Die Welt, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung (FAZ), Sueddeutsche Zeitung, and Hoerzu in West Germany; Der Schweizer Beobachter in Switzerland; and Die Presse, Profil and Trend in Austria.

A total of 1.775 million flyers were distributed last year in these magazines and newspapers. The average cost per response for all advertising in 1982 totaled about DM 6.78 or $2.83 for each new subscriber added.

In January, 1983, the Work placed 842,000 flyers in Die Welt, FAZ and Sueddeutsche Zeitung and received more than 3.3 percent response or 28,168 requests for subscriptions.

An additional dividend included a request from the people of Hoerzu, Europe's largest circulation TV magazine (four million), to advertise in their magazine. The response to the first ad in March totaled 16,435.

The German-language Plain Truth, Klar & Wahr is sent to 100 nations including countries of Eastern Europe, China and even Vatican City. The subscription list stands at 115,000.

Because of advertising and an increasing subscription list, 1982 incoming mail (184,195 items) was up 54 percent.

During 1982, 142,861 pieces of literature were sent out — up 73 percent over 1981. A total of 14,803 Bible Correspondence Course lessons were sent out, up 53 percent from 1981.

German-language Good News circulation increased more than 100 percent from 3,045 to 6,218. In January it was projected to reach about 8,000 because of the offer of the magazine to former and active Correspondence Course students. Thus far 45 percent have responded.

West Africa

Malcolm and Judy Tofts have arrived in Accra, Ghana. They formerly served in Montreal, Que. They will overlap in Ghana for several months with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rhodes, before assuming responsibility for the Accra and Kumasi churches and visiting members in Liberia and Cameroon. This arduous assignment has been well fulfilled by Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes for nearly five years.

In December, Geneva, Switzerland, office manager Bernard Andrist visited several French-speaking West African nations and conducted Bible studies for brethren scattered through those areas.

In Zaire, 45 people met to hear Mr. Andrist, and two more members were baptized. There are 17 members in Zaire, one each in Ivory Coast and Upper Volta, three in Rwanda and 59 in Cameroon.

REFRESHING COURSE — Ministers and wives participating in the Jan. 10 to 20 Ministerial Refreshing Program pause on the steps of the Loma D. Armstrong Academic Center in Pasadena Jan. 13. This session, the 13th, included ministers and wives from God's Work in Spanish-speaking areas. They are pictured on page 4. The above ministers are from Canada, Fiji and the United States.
