Joseph W. Tkach flies to SEPs for first visit as pastor general

By Michael A. Snyder PASADENA — Calling the Summer Educational Program (SEP) a "boot camp for excel-lence," Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach delivered his first addresses as pastor general to campers, faculty and staff at the SEPs in Orr, Minn., and Big Sandy June 26 and 27

"Since this was Mr. Tkach's first visit as pastor general, he was very excited and looked forward to seeing both camps," said Mr. Feazell in a July 3 interview with The Worldwide News

After leaving the Burbank, Calif., airport at 7 a.m., Pacific Daylight Time (PDT), Mr. Tkach arrived at the Orr regional airport shortly after noon Central Daylight Time (CDT).

Aboard the Gulfstream III jet with the pastor general were Larry Salyer, director of Church Administration, and his wife. Judy: Joseph Locke, superintendent of Imperial Schools and a personal assistant to the pastor general; and Michael Feazell, a personal assistant to Mr. Tkach, and his wife, Victoria.

Serving on Mr. Tkach's flight crew were captain Ken Hopke, cocaptain Lawrence Dietrich, steward Jay Brothers and stewardess Felicia others.

The campers at Orr greeted Mr. Tkach by lining up on the sides of the entrance road to the SEP there.

Enthusiastic greeting

"As he drove by, he rolled the window down and gave the campers a 'high five,' " Mr. Feazell said. High fives, a light slapping of hands held aloft, are an enthusiastic greeting or sign of congratulation often used by American athletes. At the camp, Kermit Nelson, who directs the SEP and Youth Opportunities United (YOU) international programs under Mr. Salyer; faculty members; ministers; and some administrative staff joined Mr. Tkach and his traveling group in the SEP Chalet for a private lunch After the luncheon Mr. Tkach and members of his party toured the SEP activities. Accompanied by Dr. Nelson and Ricky Sherrod, assistant camp director, the pastor general stopped at the camp communications activity where he viewed a newscast prepared by the campers

While there, Mr. Tkach was interviewed for a SEP newscast by campers Valerie Weidman and Roxanne Cafourek. Aubrey War-ren, an Ambassador College junior and director of communications at the Orr SEP, said Mr. Tkach told the interviewers, "You have a golden opportunity here that cannot be measured in dollars and cents." "You have a

After viewing basketball, water-skiing, the Christian living class and other activities and touring the camp dormitories. Mr. Tkach went to the SEP gymnasium to address the more than 500 campers, faculty and staff.

After introductions by Dr. Nelson, camper Joe Wine presented the pastor general with a plaque mounted on a beaver skin to commemorate Mr. Tkach's first SEP visit as pastor general.

Before beginning his address, Mr. Tkach asked the campers to autograph the back of the plaque.

Shortly after the pastor general began speaking, a thunderstorm broke, showering heavy rain, hail and strong winds on the camp. Using the storm as an illustration, Mr. Tkach encouraged the campers to soak up the things you are being given here.

In his talk, which was interrupted twice by power outages, Mr. Tkach told the group: "Make the most of it [SEP]. Take advantage of every opportunity.

Explaining the training that Prince Charles, the heir to the throne of Britain, underwent to prepare him to one day become king. Mr. Tkach said that SEP is similarly preparing campers to become leaders in the Kingdom of God,

Mr. Tkach ended his talk by urging the campers to resist temptation and peer pressure when their peers try to promote illicit drug use. "Say 'NO!' to drugs," the pastor general emphasized

PERSONAL FROM Joseph W. Heach

Dear brethren,

My recent visit to our Orr, Minn., and Big Sandy, Tex., summer camps brought home the admonition in Ephesians 6:4 to bring up our children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord."

It was refreshing and inspiring to see young faces full of enthusiasm and excitement about the good things of life that bring lasting happiness and success.

The direction the students are going, the way of life the camp staffs are striving to teach and exemplify are according to what God has shown us in His Word.

As parents, none of us are perfect. But God has given us three major principles that, if followed, will produce right results. (1) There are practices we should avoid. (2) There are practices we should follow. (3) And we should realize from the outset that Satan has deceived the whole world (Revelation 12:9).

We must face the fact that before conversion each of us was deceived to one degree or another. So we need to look to God's Word as the authority, willing to dismiss our own preconceived notions and ideas if necessary. Only then can we wisely and honestly judge our own child-rearing practices and strive to change those that do not reflect God's Word.

A recent article in the usually liberal Parents magazine pointed up the direction that child rearing in the United States has been going. In an article titled "Where Have All the Children Gone?" in the May, 1986, issue these observations were made:

"There's a vague sense that parents ... aren't sure of their own roles, responsibilities, and au-thority. Several family counselors and a number of parents were convinced, for example, that parents talk less today about sacrificing for their children ... Ironically, this trend is coupled with a strong tendency to overindulge children by not setting or enforcing rules and limits.

.... Almost all parents have increasingly valued autonomy in their children over obedience

"It's also harder for parents to know what limits are appropriate today. [Family therapist Sandra Rodman Mann, Ph.D., assistant professor of parent education at Fordham University] has found many parents have lost confidence in their own ability to make the right child-rearing choices because they no longer see a consistent set of permitted behaviors generally agreed upon and reinforced by schools, soci-ety, and other parents." What a tragedy!

Brethren, we must not allow ourselves to be deceived by the devil's wiles. We should have a clear understanding of our roles, our responsibility and authority as parents. Abraham did. God said of him, "For I know him, that he will command his chil-dren and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment" (Genesis 18:19).

Whom does God hold responsible for the training of your children? God holds you, the parent, responsible - nobody else. Not the school, not the Church, but you! What society says is acceptable, what the neighbors let their children do, or even what other parents in the Church do is not the standard by which we should evaluate our child rearing.

We have youth programs in the Church. But these programs are designed to help or assist par-- not replace them. ents Anv such program can only build on the foundation laid by parents.

What is the Church's responsibility? The Church must teach. The Church must point the brethren to God's Word, and give instruction in the principles God reveals there. But it is the parents' responsibility to heed that instruction and put it into practice.

God's principles of child rear-ing are fair, just, sensible, reasonable and sound. But like anything of value, it takes effort to put them to use for the benefit of parent and child. The entire sixth chapter of Deuteronomy explains that the parents' own personal examples, that is, their way of life and their true attitude toward God's law, are fundamental to successful child rearing. The message is clear standards don't work. - double

Today's Western society makes it easy for the unwary parent to abdicate his or her responsibility to the television set, or to the toy designers, allowing modern decadent entertainment to train, teach and shape the child's values. Some exercise no thought or discretion in choosing a child's toys, never considering whether the child's playthings reflect right or wrong values.

Parents today tend not to su-pervise children's play or entertainment, nor their selection of friends. Children are too often left on their own, to grow up without a strong, patient and loving hand guiding their way to productive adulthood.

Some parents become more concerned with how soon their children walk, talk, read or go to school, often to boost their own vanity, than they are with the (See PERSONAL, page 4)

Mr. Gorbachev went so far as to im-ply that Europe had been politically kidnaped by the United States.

Europe moves in three political directions

concept

PASADENA - The nations of Western Europe are moving in three political directions, all at the same time: away from the United States; toward a closer relationship with the Soviet Union; and, all the while, coalescing into an ever-tighter union among themselves. All three thrusts are closely interrelated. Let's look at each one, be-ginning with the ever-widening rift between the United States and its

between the United States and its West Europe allies. "When the Americans closed ranks round President [Ronald] Reagan after the US bombing of Libya," observed West German journalist Hans Wilhelm Vahlefeld, anti-American protest marches were all they saw of Britain, Germany and Italy on their TV screens ... Slowly but surely Americans in all camps — politicians and intellec-tuals, the elite and the nameless — are losing patience. Western Europe is well on its way to becoming a millstone round America's neck."

As reported several times in this column in the past year or so, the idea continues to grow in influential circles in the United States that America must scale back — espe-cially now in a time of sharp budget reductions - its on-site military commitment to Europe. At the same time, Europe is being urged to do more to develop its own military, including nuclear, capacity.

An editorial in the June 30 U.S. News & World Report, for example, reflects the accelerating U.S. mood, "The U.S. is assuming too much of the military and financial burden for NATO," wrote editor Mortimer B. Zuckerman. "Some $140 billion, or about half our military budget, goes to Europe, where we have our largest overseas conventional forces committed -340,000 troops out of a total of 540,000 overseas . .

"Europeans ... [meanwhile] seek to veto the use of U.S. forces based in Europe for actions outside the NATO-treaty area — witness the European opposition to American retaliation against Libya. Eu-ropeans must do more to maximize their capabilities to defend their own territory ... "Some 150,000 troops should be phased out of Europe over a five-to-10-year period and redeployed as an additional strategic reserve in the United States," concluded Mr. Zuckerman. "It is time for the U.S. to bite the European bullet."

What particularly incenses Americans, even some knowledge-able Europeans admit, is the growable Europeans admit, is the grow-ing tendency in Europe to equate U.S. foreign policy with Soviet ac-tions. One example is to treat on the same basis the U.S. military opera-tion in Grenada, which put a halt to tion in Grenada, which put a nait to a Marxist drive in the eastern Caribbean, with Soviet policy in Afghanistan, where a full-blown drive is under way to stamp out not only Afghan resistance but Afghan relitered heaterers

Parents: do you listen?

Have any of you ever watched the Bill Cosby television show? I watch it when my schedule permits, be-cause its theme deals with the family and family problems.

From what I've read, Mr. Cosby's TV family parallels some-what his real family, and I'm sure some of the situations portrayed so humorously are inspired by his own family circumstances.

For those of you who have not seen it, in the show Mr. Cosby is an obstetrician and his wife is a lawyer (a very modern family). They have a son and four daughters. The son and three of the daughters are teenagers or close to it; the youngest in the family is a cute little girl, about 6.

Of course, 1 don't always agree with how the problems are eventually worked out, but at least they ad-dress their problems and work them out together. If you watch it with your family, it's a good way to get a discussion going on the right way to solve a family problem.

solve a family problem. For example, on a show a few months ago, one of their teenage daughters asked her father if one of her friends could come to him for an examination. She explained that her friend felt she may have a health problem.

When her father asked if the friend's parents knew of their daughter's problem, his daughter said no, her friend did not want them to know.

Well, of course, Bill Cosby, or Dr. Huxtable on the show, thought at first it was his own daughter that needed help. She assured him, however, that it was a friend at school.

Dr. Huxtable examined the girl and told her she had an infection of the bladder and asked how long had she been experiencing pain. She said about a month. He asked her if her parents knew. She said no. The girl did not want her parents to know she was sexually active and was afraid her illness might betray the fact.

At home that evening, Dr Huxtable told his wife about the in riuxiable told nis wite about the in-cident. He was horrified that this teenage girl would wait as long as she did before finding out what was wrong with her. He asked his wife if she thought their children would come to them when they had a prob-

Who would be the first one they would go to with their problem. His son tells his father he would go to his best friend, because he knows his father would get mad at him.

Dr. Huxtable assures his family he would not get mad at them if they brought their problems to him. One of the daughters, by now getting into the spirit of the thing, says OK, she would like to tell her parents about something that has been wor rying her.

She tells them that instead of staying all night with a girlfriend, that she went to a boyfriend's house and that his parents were away at the time.

This eminent writer continued: "The essential point of the new treaty is to abolish the national veto over the whole range of social pol-icy. Within the area, Britain will no longer be able to impede further re-ductions of its sovereignty, however fundamental.

Just one year ago the ensemble thrilled sellout crowds in the Auditorium while being videotaped for a public television performance. This year's three-concert appearance Canada that marked the 50th anniversary of the orchestra's first transcontinental tour. until the final C chord reverberated throughout the Auditorium's inti-mate main hall.

The Philadelphia Orchestra displayed its virtuosity at the other end of the sonorous spectrum in Joseph Haydn's Symphony No. 48 in C Major, "Maria Theresia." The pizzicato section in the minuet could prove troublesome for a lesser orchestra given the Auditorium's sensitive acoustics, but here the Philadelphian strings unified into a single light, delicate instrument, Interviewed at the Expo 86 world's fair in Vancouver, B.C., be-fore coming to Pasadena, conductor Muti praised the acoustics of the Ambassador Auditorium.

"We are very critical about con-cert halls," the conductor ex-plained. "So when they [the orchestra] feel that the hall gives off the richness that our instruments have — when a Stradivari [violin] sounds like a Stradivari ... naturally they want to play better."

Noting that he appreciated the conductor's intensity while performing. Mr. Tkach said that Mr. Muti's passion for ex-cellence exemplified the goals of the Ambassador Foundation. Though the orchestra has recorded critically acclaimed albums under conductor Muti, he still loves taking the music directly to the people. "Even the most beauti-ful records, sonically speaking, cannot reproduce the real sound of an chestra in a concert hall," Mr. Muti said.

"Maestro Muti's commitment to quality and excellence is something we can all emulate," Mr. Tkach said.

"Two weeks prior to June 19, virtually the entire technical and house staffs from the Auditorium and selected personnel from other departments worked many long, hard hours on preparations," Mr. La Ravia said.

Wayne Shilkret, director of performing arts for the foundation, was program committee chairman. Cindy Paxton, Mr. Shilkret's assistant, was instrumental in centennial preparations.

"The whole effort really demonstrated our commitment to the give way of life and was an outstanding example to the community," the evangelist said.

He reminded the campers of the tragic drug-related death of Len Bias. Mr. Bias, 22, had signed a multimillion dollar contract to play basket ball for the Boston (Mass.) Celtics when he died from an overdose of cocaine.

Encouraging the campers to be strong, Mr. Tkach said, "You might be the one that is instrumental in helping to turn some young person's life around."

program that Dr. Nelson and his staff have put together."

The next morning, June 27, Mr. Tkach, Dr. Nelson and Larry Haworth, Big Sandy camp director, and others began touring the camp activities.

"The activities at Big Sandy are different from what's offered at Orr," explained Mr. Feazell. "Although they are offered in the same professional and competent manner at both camps, the activities at Big Sandy are geared more for the East Texas area and the Big Sandy campus.

"Mr. Tkach later commented that he was particularly impressed with the defensive driving course taught by Lee Stolley," Mr. Feazell continued. "The course not only teaches campers how to drive, but it also makes them aware of the responsibility they have as drivers," Mr. Stolley is director of the Ambassador College Security Department in Big Sandy.

Mr. Feazell also commented that the spaciousness of the Big Sandy campus makes possible different activities from the Orr facility. "For example, the cycling program is a unique part of the Big Sandy program."

After touring most of the activities, Mr. Tkach was host for a luncheon with SEP faculty, ministers and staff. After lunch Mr. Tkach went to the campus field house where he addressed more than 400 campers, ministers, faculty and staff.

Emphasizing that God is personally concerned about young people in the Church, Mr. Tkach related several stories about his youth, again urging the campers to resist wrong peer pressure. "Believe me, I know what peer pressure is," he said.

As he did in Orr, the pastor general explained what their role in the world tomorrow will be and how SEP helps train them to be leaders.

"It was great to have him here," said Dr. Nelson in a telephone interview with The Worldwide News. "He left the campers at both SEPs excited and enthusiastic.

"The staffs at both camps appreciated his involvement and his interest in the program. It was a great shot in the arm."

Asked what Mr. Tkach enjoyed most about the trip, Mr. Feazell answered: "He commented both during his address and later that SEP's major purpose is to teach God's way of life — how to put God's law in action.

"I think what he enjoyed most was seeing the happiness and joy in the campers that can only be the fruit of living that law and that way of life."

Weekly Sabbath: how to use it to revitalize, refresh, plan ahead

By Neville Fraser

How can we be happy and enjoy God's Sabbath when we have had an exhausting week and it looks like an equally exhausting week lies ahead? There are many ways to look at the subject of keeping the Sabbath and making it a happier time. Not only is the Sabbath a chance to rest from the week just past, but an op-portunity to prepare for the week ahead

Neville Fraser will serve as the associate pastor of the Suva, Fiji, church.

A concept that may help us make it through each week and enjoy the Sabbath just a little better was reinforced by a news event. This con-cept should help every one of us have happier Sabbaths and realize t do without this valuable time each week.

On top of the world

The news item concerned the death of Tenzing Norgay, the Nepalese Sherpa who acco nied New Zealander Edmund Hillary on the first ascent of Mt. Everest, May 29, 1953

It was a time of great excitement and happiness. World attention focused on the two men for some time. After a great effort and overcomin many obstacles, they succeeded in standing where no man had stood before. Encouraged by this first success, more than 200 climbers men and women, have since reached the summit of Everest.

The two men did not rest on their laurels. Edmund Hillary, knighted by Britain's Oueen Elizabeth II. and Tenzing developed schools and hospitals in the region, helping to se the living standards of the peo enis ple. By organizing the support that came from their success, Sir Edmund and Tenzing gave the people some of the things they needed.

When asked how happy he was at reaching the top of Everest, Tenzing is reported to have said, "The happiness came after." Success on the mountain, overcoming all obstacles, made him happy, but using that success to serve his people and see the benefits gave him even greater happiness

Our mountain

Each of us is climbing a moun-tain. It's much higher than Everest, and it takes longer to climb. The summit is the Kingdom of God.

We are climbing, just like Hillary and Tenzing, our eyes fixed on the goal

When we are called out of this world, it's a bit like climbers who leave civilization and head for the mountains. Leaving the world and its problems, we head for the freshness of a different way of life and the challenge of the climb.

At baptism, the base camp is established from which we begin the climb, after first checking that all details are in order and that we understand what the objective is. Just as Edmund Hillary was assisted in that climb by his Sherpa guide, Tenzing, who gave him wise counsel, so we are assisted by our guide. Psalm 146:5 tells us that if God is our guide, then we can be happy. God is always there at our side to encourage us, or going ahea to cut the steps in the ice as we climb. As we struggle to overcome this world and the downward pull of human nature, we can look to God as our great help and trusted guide. Proverbs 3:13 shows us that we can be happy: Contact with God, the source of all wisdom, assures us of success. Just as a climber learns the rules and techniques of climb-ing, so are we learning God's spiritual rules for success and applying the principles given us by our guide. Like any mountaineer, we are not wrapped up in the world. We have left it behind. It is of no real interest. We are concentrating on the job at hand, getting rid of worldly atti-tudes because we know that our life depends on concentrating on the task at hand. We must abide by the rules of our climb, just as the mountaineer must.

Being locked into this way of life is like being roped together on a mountain. We are free to move, sometimes laterally so as to get a better hold, but always with an upward intention. If we slip, the line is there to save us, provided we are still attached.

A base camp

Every major mountain takes time to ascend. So, too, does our climb through this life. Mountaineers don't go straight up any mountain. They establish base camps along the way, to rest, gather strength and rethink the next stage of the climb. We are no different. The weekly

Sabbath is our base camp where we can rest and be refreshed, where can look back on the past week's climb but look ahead, too.

God, like a top-rate guide, knows our limit (Psalm 103:14). He has given us regular rest camps to gather strength. He knows that the higher we climb, the tougher it gets.

Each Sabbath we can review the climb so far. Maybe we slipped a little during the week, lost our hold for a moment, and down we went. Our safety rope pulled us up, though, and we climbed back up to where we were. Realizing our mistake, we determined not to err again as we lis-tened to our guide instructing us.

Deuteronomy 33:27 shows God as our guide, our refuge: "The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms." God is the one we should never turn away from. We should never think we can try it on our own, because when we slip there will be no one there to stop us falling to our death.

Just as the mountaineer concentrates on what he is doing every step of the way, so do we need to meditate on God's law and think about it. daily, studying the path to take so we don't go wrong. God is looking out for us all the time. He will help us overcome all difficulties. He points us to the summit, our goal, the Kingdom of God. We are spe-cial people chosen to climb that mountain now, paving the way for others to follow

Being lights

Just as Hillary and Tenzing went on to help others, so, too, can we There's a time coming when we will be on top of the world, literally. God has pro used us that. We will rule over this earth, teaching God's perfect way to all humanity. But for now, we can serve others by our example.

So the Sabbath is a special time to pause and reflect on the trials and triumphs of the week. It is a time to discuss everything with our guide, especially the week ahead. It is a time to plan our next moves in this climb by talking to God and asking Him for assistance and help in where we should go and what we should do Always keeping the goal in sight, we can look forward to the Sabbath. It is not just a time to collapse in exhaustion but a time to be refreshed and strengthened for the week ahead. This approach will make our Sabbaths much happier.

You can reignite your first love A surprising key stops burnout flicker, finally burning itself out when the match stick is consumed.

professor at Pasadena Ambas

Unfortunately, many Christians who formerly had a seemingly boundless supply of zest and zeal for God's truth have begun to flicker. They lack the zeal and the love they once had.

Christians are called "the light of the world" (Matthew 5:14). But some of God's people, like the fool-ish virgins in Matthew 25, have allowed their spiritual lights to die down and burn out.

If our lamps are in danger of go ing out — if they are only smolder-ing and not blazing — where do we get a relight? Shockingly, many Christians are dangerously close to spiritual burnout. Weary of well-doing, many no longer even smile, looking as though they were forced to eat sauerkraut on their oatmeal. They appear tired, faded and without joy Revelation describes a historica church era in which this characteristic predominated: "Unto the angel of the church of Ephesus write . . . I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and reent, and do the first works; or else will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent" (Revelation 2:1, 4-5).

God thunders this same warning to those of us today who are approaching spiritual burnout - who are letting our zeal for God's work die

Fleeting first love?

But how can a member who has been in God's Church 10, 20 or 30 years recapture his or her first flush of love for the truth? That's like asking an old married couple to reasking an old married couple to re-capture their early romance — a special time when sunsets, milk shakes with two straws, porch swings and moonlit nights all took on special significance. Some jaded couples say this time or feeling can never be brought back.

One couple I know have savored their honeymoon for several years. Once, as they were strolling down the sidewalk hand in hand. I asked them jokingly, "All right, you two when is the honeymoon over 'Never!" came the quick, firm nse. To this couple, ror like teeth, was meant to last a life time

First love, the kind the Ephesians lost, does not have to die. Even if it somehow begins to be quenched, it can be revived!

Toward a solution

The key to renewing zeal is fel-lowship with God's people, particu-larly meeting new people rather than sticking with the same old cronies and cliques week after week. How wonderful it is to share the precious knowledge of God's truth with people who feel the same way you do — the members of God's you do Churcht

Some people, of course, don't want to associate with anybody. The independent Bible scholar, armed with his concordance and Greek lexicon, feels quite self-sufficient. But God wants His people to fellowship with each other as well as with Him. Fellowshipping with God's people is equivalent to fellowshipping with God (1 John 4:21). One who loves God the Father is obligated to love those begotten of Him, including the firstborn, Jesus Christ, and the brethren (1 John

The way to stay close to God is to stay close to God's people. It's like the main current of a stream --- the water stavs fresh because it is continually circulating or mingling When the stream is low, isolated pools form. Since the water in these pools is no longer circulating, algae, scum and debris collect in them.

Likewise, God's people will stag-nate without the continuous circulation of fellowship. People who are mature in God's truth can become rejuvenated and filled with new zeal and youth by in-volving themselves with people who have recently discovered God's truth. Newly converted people can learn balance, wisdom and spiritual maturity by associating with people mature in the faith. Old and young people (both physically and spiritu ally) are good for each other.

God's people need each other. Though modern Western society is largely destroying the family, God intended that we grow up in an ex-tended family within His Church, having frequent contact with spiri-tual grandparents, parents, uncles, cousing, brothers and sisters, aunts Fellowshipping is the key to reigniting our flush of first love. God's people should actually be closer to each other than to their professional associates or even their own blood relatives. The more we associate with people of like minds, the more we learn how God is work-ing in people's lives. It is inspiring and it also builds zeal.

True fellowship

Fellowship is showing empathy for other people's problems. Chris tians have the same kinds of prob lems that befail the rest of mankind (1 Corinthians 10:13). A widower has a tremendous opportunity to serve when he can help console a man who has just lost his wife. Parallel experiences can help bond peo-ple closer together.

A number of years ago, following an automobile accident, I spent nearly a year in a cast, using crutches and a cane. Now, more than a decade later, I still respond spontaneously to someone in a cast or on crutches. Likewise, people who have gone through illness, deaths of family members, divorce or financial reverses can share grief and comfort, bearing one another's burdens (Galatians 6:2).

Christians have similar tempta tions, doubts and fears. But all Christians have also had some success overcoming certain kinds of temptations and fears. People find it beneficial to share successes as well as sorrow

We are admonished to share or shortcomings so we may pray for and encourage each other (James 5:16). Individuals who have been tempted in a certain area may be better equipped to understand wi another person is going through, and can be instrumental in turning someone back from a wrong and dangerous course (James 5:20). The Laodicean church (Revelation 3:14-17) lost its zeal in part be-cause of its independent, "I have need of nothing" attitude.

A prominent educator once said, "No man is big enough to be inde-pendent." God's people need each other

We all need to do ourselves a fa vor by reigniting our first love through fellowship -- with familiar friends, with strangers, with older people, with younger people and, es-pecially, through daily fellowship with the patriarch of our Family God the Father.

Brethren go on camp-outs

HOUSTON, Tex., WEST brethren attended their annual church camp-out June 5 to 8 at Stephen F. Austin State Park near Sealey, Tex. Those who arrived on Thursday, June 5, set up the camp. Friday's ac-tivities included swimming, out-door sports and preparation for the Sabbath.

Saturday morning, June 7, Ken neth Giese, pastor of the Houston West and Victoria, Tex., churches, gave a Bible study on course correction of children. In the afternoon he gave a sermonette showing three ways to spend more time with children. The sermon was a taped mes-sage by Victor Root, associate pas-tor of the Pasadena Auditorium A.M. church.

Saturday evening activities included table games and a singalong. Rain canceled the outdoor activities planned for Sunday.

Church youths from the BIRMINGHAM, BRISTOL, GLOUCESTER and LIVER-POOL, England, churches attended a camp at Disserth, Wales, May 25 to 30.

The camp, near the River Ithon, is near Llandrindod Wells, Wales. Is near Liandmood weits, wates. Activities included cycling directed by Ray Bunting, hiking and orien-teering directed by Colin Smith, swimming directed by Hane Steele and Andrea Simmons, and games directed by Basil Harris.

Wednesday, May 28, the group hiked to the sources of the Severn and Wye rivers.

ATHENS, Ga., Church youths attended a camp-out and hayride June 7 and 8 at the farm of Paul and Betty Hamilton. Fifty-two people attended.

Saturday evening while hot does were roasted over an open grill, Ronald Wallen, pastor of the Athens and Buford, Ga., churches, led a discussion about the meaning

Mothers, daughters share lunch

"Garden of Eden" was the theme of the SEDRO-WOOLLEY Wash., church's second annual mother and daughter luncheon June 8.

The theme was depicted by a miniature garden with a picket fence, fresh and artificial flowers, potted plants and artificial grass. Lunch included a variety of salads, fruit plates and punch.

Elaine Jamieson was master of ceremonies for the entertainment portion of the afternoon. Performers were daughters, mothers and grandmothers ranging in age from 4 grandmothers ranging in age from 4 to 78. Selections included a piano solo, vocal solos and duets, a trio dance routine, a poem, a flute and piano duet and a skit. Tiny Reis-dorff.

Clear-sighted American reporter

Why do some see clearer than others? Many factors enter into this question: heredity, environment, education, knowledge of history, travel and natural gifts of discern ment. Whatever the answer Ameri-can correspondent William Pfaff is a reporter with vision. He understands Europe as few Americans do. He wrote on the editorial page of the International Herald Tribune: "What has been striking since 1945 is not how much the world has changed from that Europe-centered one which existed before 1945, but how little has changed, so far as the essential comchanged, so far as the essential com-ponents of power and risk are con-cerned. That many, perhaps most, North Americans fail to recognize this is a further factor of risk." Mr. Pfaff conceded that West European states are individually somewhat behind the superpowers and Japan in economic clout. Then he observed: "Count France and Britain, or France and Italy, together with West Germany, and you have an industrial agglomeration of Soviet size or bigger, and one infinitely more flexible, innovative and technologically sophisticated. If the European Community is considered all together, it makes up the most powerful economic and indus-trial combination on earth."

Then Mr. Pfaff delivered a blockbuster. He wrote: "Common Amer-ican perceptions of Western Europe as a comparatively weak and declin-ing force in world affairs are justified by neither the indices of productive power nor those of potential military strength. The military ca-pacity of Western Europe, collec-tively, is equivalent to that of either of the superpowers — should the Europeans wish to make use of it". Mr. Pfaff's insight is almost biblical. He recognizes the Continent's continuing instability. It is still divided by the proverbial Iron Cur-tain. Berlin is rent in two. The two Germanys remain riven. This is not Europe's natural state. Present con-ditions are inherently problem producing.

He concluded: "What happens in Europe decides the global balance of power. Europe is the pawn capa-ble of becoming a queen." What God sees God sees everything human beings do and much more. His politi-cal vision is unfailingly accurate. He understands and sees Europe as no man or nation does. He knows the pawn will become a queen. It is His ision that counts. Indeed the biblical prophet

Daniel foretold future happenings in Europe more than two and a half millennia ago. There were to be Holy Roman Empire. A final 10-nation superpower will constitute the seventh and last resurrection.

At that time all nations will finally realize that God is the ultimate ruler among the kingdoms of men. He can make and unmake nations. He has done so in the past. Fi-nally He will set up His ruling family on this earth.

That time is just ahead of us.

PASADENA - Pastor General Joseph W. Tkach named evangelist Leslie McCullough, deputy chan-cellor of Big Sandy Ambassador College, to be regional director for southern Africa July 5. Evangelist Roderick C.

Meredith, a professor of theology at Pasadena Ambassador College, was named to replace Mr. McCullough as deputy chancellor of the Big Sandy campus. "To my knowledge, Dr. Meredith is the only man in the Church who will have served as deputy chancellor on all three campuses of Ambassador College when he begins serving at Big Sandy," said Larry Salyer, director of Church Administration.

Dr. Meredith served as deputy chancellor of the former Ambassador campus in Bricket Wood, England, from April, 1973, to June, 1974, when the campus closed. He served as deputy chancellor of the Pasadena campus from June, 1972, to March, 1973.

"Among the colorful members of the audience were a Jehovah's Wit ness pastor, a Catholic monk, a Salvation Army missionary and a Sev-enth-day Adventist elder."

Five hundred twenty new people attended Pura Verdad (Spanish Plain Truth) lectures conducted June 27, 28 and 29 in Lima, Peru by Mario Seiglie, pastor of the San-

As conditions worsen in these countries, more and more people are waking up to the problems in the world and are seeking spiritual solu-tions," Mr. Seiglie added.

The lectures took place in Lima's Crillon Convention Center, scene of an attempted bombing the week before.

Mr. Seiglie said: "A woman tried to blast the convention center, but she was killed in the event. That's the same building that brethren meet in and where the follow-up studies are taking place. "We ask for prayers because there are bombs going off daily. I was one block away taking a shower, when a bomb went off and knocked me to the shower floor."
